NAZIS STRIKE FRENCH REAR; PARIS SAYS PLIGHT SERIOUS

Mechanized German shock troops—ranging far ahead of support units in the seventh day of the Nazi flanking drive through Belgium and into France — struck at the rear of the French army defending the Meuse river front between Sedan and Namur today. Observers classified the battle line between these two points as "50 miles of Hell."

A French War Office spokesman said that a great battle was in progress and that the situation was "serious—very confusing."

German troops marched into the capitulated cities of The Hague and Amsterdam, in Holland, the Nazi high command announced, and a fierce battle raged on a 110-mile front from Antwerp in Belgium to Sedan, 10 miles inside the French border.

"The enemy has accepted the fight," a German communique stated.

Berlin also claimed capture of the French town of Longwy just north of the Maginot Line near the Luxembourg border. The capture, which the Nazis say took place Tuesday morning, has cleared the way "for what may be one of the greatest defeats of modern times," Berlin asserted.

Mediterranean Crisis Grave

The French high command, in a cryptic communique, said the bloody three-day-old battle of the Meuse had flared into gigantic mechanized wide open warfare. The situation was so serious and confused that the high command withheld all but the barest details.

Meanwhile, the rising crisis in the Mediterranean area was spotlighted by three new developments:

1. United States consulates advised American citizens to leave Italy "at the earliest possible moment."

2. The Yugoslav cabinet reviewed plans for general mobilization amid fears of an attack by Italy.

3. Greece massed troops on her wild frontier with Albania, an Italian "protectorate."

The Allied command resorted to swift tank counter-attacks and the British staged their greatest air raids of the war.

Berlin military circles looked for the main battle to develop along Belgium's "Dyle line," the second line of defense running north along the Meuse to Namur, from there to the Dyle river near Louvain, 16 miles east of Brussels, and then westward to Antwerp.

Allies Claim Success at Namur

A French war office spokesman said Nazi attacks were thrown back north of Namur, but that between Namur and Sedan the Germans were pushing forward at the three points where they crossed the Meuse yesterday.

While Germany threatened to blast Brussels into ruins unless military operations there ceased forthwith, the Mediterranean attained the new tensity of apprehension.

Italian nationals rushed out of Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Great Britain and France.

Greece, which holds a British-French guarantee for help in case of attack, rushed troop reinforcements to her Albanian border, while troops at Piraeus practiced at embarking and disembarking.

An unconfirmed report had it that Britain was pressing Greece for the right to set up naval bases on Greek islands. A further cause of Greek uneasiness was the fact that the Allied battle fleet had started "scheduled maneuvers" off Alexandria, Egypt, its base.

The British announced their Royal Air Force now was an important factor in Meuse front operations, having made its biggest offensive of the war on German objectives east of the Rhine, dropping "many tons" of bombs effectively during the night.

British Tommies stiffened Belgian defense lines.

HEAVY DOTTED LINE shows approximate battle line on the Belgian-French front today. Beginning at the Fortress of Antwerp the line extends northeast of Brussels, along Dyle river to Namur, southwest of Namur, south of Sedan thence along the border south of Saarbrucken. Greatest attack ferocity is the "50-mile-hell," between Namur and Sedan (1). Brussels (2) is being shelled, as is Louvain (3). Longwy (4), famous key point on the Maginot Line, is reported taken by Nazis. At Saaregumines (5) a Nantucket, Mass., Red Cross driver is missing and other drivers unharmed when ambulances are shelled.

IL DUCE GETS NEW F. D. PEACE PLEA

By PERCY WINNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, May 16—A message to Premier Mussolini from President Roosevelt, urging Italy cooperate in preventing the war's extension has been delivered through Foreign Minister Count Ciano, Italian officials admitted today.

Earlier the United States embassy in Rome confirmed reports that the American President had sent a communication to Il Duce.

Italian authorities said the note was of a "personal nature."

An official communique issued late today said diplomatic circles were not optimistic concerning the opportuneness of the American President's message.

At the same time, reports reached Rome from Valletta of the arrest of numerous Maltese nationalists.

U. S. Hears Italy Set to Join War

WASHINGTON, May 16 (INS)—The United States government has been warned by its official observers abroad to expect the entry of Italy into the European war very soon, possibly today.

This was learned as it also came to light that the President, nearly yesterday, addressed an "eleventh hour" peace plea to Premier Benito Mussolini.

Late yesterday the State Department announced that Americans in Europe had been advised to congregate in the Bordeaux section of France, in Portugal or in Spain for evacuation by specially-designed ships.

The fact that the State Department believed that United States refugees would not be able to leave Europe from Italian ports, indicated to observers that little hope was held that Rome would stay out of the conflict.

Thousands of Tanks, Planes in Huge Fight Along 50-Mile Front

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—Thousands of warplanes and tanks clashed in an unprecedented battle of movement along the Meuse front today, involving a situation so serious and confused that the high command withheld all but the barest details.

A general melee ensued from Namur south to Sedan in northern France — scene of the fiercest German attacks — with armored units from either side cutting loose from their infantry and plunging boldly forward to strike the enemy from the rear.

A war ministry spokesman said the Germans were meeting powerful resistance as they pushed deeper into Belgium at three different points on the west bank of the Meuse where they crossed yesterday.

(The German high command said its divisions reached the western embankment of the Meuse "again defeating French armored units." South of Sedan, the Germans said, French counter-attacks which included heavy tanks, were repelled and German troops advanced between the Moselle and the Rhine west of Saalautern and near Lauterburg.)

ON TWO GREAT LINES

Fighting was general on two great lines, one, running roughly from Antwerp to the region east of Louvain and to Gembloux then to Givet near Mezieres and on to Sedan in France.

The second line runs from Sedan through Montmedy, Longwy and along the Franco-German border

CONGRESS HEARS F. D. ON DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt emphasized his concern over world events today by suddenly deciding to give Congress in person his far-reaching recommendations for a more powerful national defense.

The word that the Chief Executive intended to appear before a joint session at 1 p. m. (Boston daylight time) took congressmen completely by surprise, and touched off speculations that Mr. Roosevelt might use his defense message as an occasion for a formal pronouncement on the whole field of foreign affairs.

Last-minute advices from abroad created an atmosphere of tenseness and uncertainty in the capital.

Members of both houses sought to plumb the significance of authoritative reports that Mr. Roosevelt had not ceased his communications to the Italian and other foreign governments, despite the burden of the defense address which kept him working into the early morning hours.

Fears that Italy might be ready to enter the war found emphasis, some thought, in the overnight State Department warning for all Americans to quit western and southern Europe "in view of recent developments."

Ambassador Bullitt in Paris added a footnote to the warning with the announcement that the State Department was considering dispatching ships to French ports to remove American nationals.

The expectation in Congress was that Mr. Roosevelt would ask nearly a billion dollars for extra prepared-

NAZIS SEE QUICK COLLAPSE OF ALLIES IN BIG DEFEAT

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, May 16—With the capture of Longwy, just north of the Maginot line, German "blitz" troops have widened the battlefront in Belgium and France and cleared the way "for what may be one of the greatest defeats of modern times," official Nazi spokesmen declared today.

Predicting an Allied collapse, possibly within the next few days, German military circles asserted Hitler's 1940 adaptation of the famous Von Schlieffen plan for encirclement of Paris was proceeding with speed and precision far exceeding that of 1914.

BIGGER THAN WATERLOO

The German army, according to military information in Berlin, is gradually moving into full battle position and the next few days undoubtedly will see a large-scale engagement "overshadowing Waterloo and the Marne in its extent and importance."

The battle will break, it was said, all along the line from Antwerp down the Dyle river to Namur.

(Editor's Note—All this is a forecast. Germany does not usually disclose her battle plans in advance.)

Already, according to German spokesmen, the Nazi drive has caused far greater havoc within the Allied ranks than anyone suspects.

The climax is expected over the week-end. The north and south arms of the German pincer are already pushing the Allies back in a menacing maneuver.

MILTON OFFICER SLAIN, BANDIT-KILLER SHOT

With a snub-nosed revolver he had concealed from his captors, a bald-headed bandit today killed Patrolman Edward F. Lee, 57, of Milton police, then was dropped himself with three bullets fired by Patrolman Stephen J. Slack, Jr. Officer Lee died at Milton Hospital a short time after the shooting, which occurred in front of Milton police station as the bandit and two companions were being taken from a police car. To the samehospita l was taken the wounded captive, a man about 35 years old, giving the name "Joe Brooks of New York."

Boston police soon established, however, that he had lived from May 9 until yesterday at 1 p. m. in a Shawmut ave., South End, rooming house under the name Joseph Beaulieu.

One bullet fired by Officer Slack pierced an arm of the bandit. The other two bullets went into his back. At the hospital his name was placed on the danger list.

SUSPECTS ARE HELD

Locked up at Milton police station were his two alleged companions, Armand Papineau, 23, of Dwight st., South End, formerly of Church st., Somerville, and George Zukauskis, 21, of Athens st., South Boston.

George Zukauskis A. Papineau

Although Papineau told police he was a soldier stationed at Ft. Duval, Hull, this was denied by his brother-in-law, Sergt. Joseph Badinette, commanding officer at the fort.

The sergeant said Paniueau had been employed briefly at the fort as a civilian helper when he had been unable to find work, and had left about a month ago.

In a search of Papineau's room in South Boston, police said they found a box of .32-caliber cartridges, the same caliber as the murder gun.

BULLETS ARE CHECKED

These bullets, with the bullet which killed Officer Lee, and the .32-caliber revolver used, will be tested by Capt. Charles J. Van Amburgh, state ballistics expert, and his son and assistant, Charles Van Amburgh.

The aim of the Van Amburghs will be to determine if the revolver which killed Officer Lee is one used in other holdups in which bullets or shells were recovered.

"JOE BROOKS"
Held as Police Slayer

According to Patrolman Slack, cruiser car partner of Officer Lee, the two companions of "Brooks" made no effort to join him in his apparent atempt to escape after the trio had been picked up up in a car reported stolen from a West End garage during a $60 holdup.

In an attempt to identify "Joe Brooks," Special Officers John McCarthy and William J. Finnigan of South Boston station questioned Papineau and Zukauskis, then went to Milton Hospital and attempted to question the wounded man.

EXONERATES ONE OF TRIO

Throughout the brief session, the officers said "Brooks" attempted to shield his face and to keep himself

Dorchester Showgirl Weds Heir To $40,000,000 Dodge Fortune

Martha Mickey Devine, 27-year-old Dorchester showgirl and one-time South Boston choir singer, was honeymooning in Detroit today after a Baltimore marriage to twice-divorced Horace E. Dodge, father of four children and heir to a $40,000,000 automobile fortune.

The girl who sang in Boston churches as a child and danced at parish festivals was wed to the motor heir in the Seventh Baptist Church of Baltimore. The wedding climaxed a romance which first began seven years ago when Dodge spied her over Broadway footlights.

Miss Devine gave her home address as Clearwater st., Dorchester, where her mother lives, in obtaining a waiver of Maryland's 48-hour marriage laws. She declared that a waiver was necessary or "our marriage plans will be delayed indefinite'y."

The millionaire sportsman first saw Mickey when she danced in Earl Carroll's Vanities. Two years later, when the second Mrs. Dodge sued for $250,000 separate support, Dodge branded as "foolish" reports that he was to divorce his wife to marry Miss Devine.

Born in South Boston, Miss Devine got her start in parish amateur theatricals and after graduation from high school went directly to Broadway. She appeared in a long list of musicals.

Dodge was first married to Lois Knowlton, who instituted divorce proceedings in 1926. Although he pursued her around the world in an attempt to win a reconciliation, she won her divorce and $1,000,000 settlement. Later she married Benjamin F. Manning, an army officer stationed at Honolulu.

Dodge's second marriage in London in 1928 was to Muriel D. Sisman of Detroit, daughter of a contractor. This also ended in divorce. There were two children by each marriage.

HERTER FOR ONE FOREIGN POLICY

SPRINGFIELD, May 16 (AP)—Christian A. Herter, Republican speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, recommended today that both major parties adopt the same statement of foreign policy for the coming campaign, thus eliminating foreign affairs as an issue.

"To do so," he said in a prepared address before the Springfield Women's Republican Club, "would strengthen greatly the unity of the nation in the face of what is clearly a great danger.

"To do so would arrest the stultification of our national effort which must inevitably come from throwing the question of foreign policy into the arena of political debate during the crucial months ahead."

Herter, a delegate to the Republican National Convention, said he felt there was no essential difference of opinion between the Republican and the Democratic parties in regard to the nation's conduct of foreign affairs and suggested that the resolutions committee of the two parties' national conventions sit down together and prepare "a very general statement of foreign policy," to be adopted by both conventions.

G. O. P. Convention In August Proposed

WASHINGTON, May 16 (INS)—A powerful Republican personage is sounding out his party's leaders today on a proposal to postpone the GOP presidential convention from June 24 to mid-August.

Two reasons lie behind the postponement suggestion:

1—The latest German "blitzkrieg" may create many new international issues that cannot be met by writing a platform in June.

2—The second World War likely will be still raging in June but may be settled by August and its outcome might have a predominant influence upon the naming of the Republican presidential nominee.

Officials at Republican national headquarters denied knowledge of any postponement plan and indicated opposition to it.

The idea, however, is being tested among Republican chieftains. Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican leader of the house, was asked whether he had heard the suggestion. Martin replied:

"Yes, a proposal of that character has been called to my attention. Personally, I haven't reached any conclusion as to whether it would be wise or not."

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—Rush Holt, West Virginia's dynamic 35-year-old senator, critic of President Roosevelt and the New Deal, has lost his battle to return to Washington.

The apparent nominee was Harley M. Kilgore, of Beckley, a criminal court judge.

Many Offer Homes To Nameless Triplets

Their names are only "A," "B" and "C."

They lie—three tiny boy babies—in the sunlit nursery of Framingham Union Hospital, not knowing the mixed tragedy and high courage that gave them life.

Nor do they know that all through New England men and women watch their fragile lives with a nearly breathless interest.

They are the three sons born 10 days ago to unwed Margaret Meuse, 18, of Lynn st., Everett, who went to her narrow grave giving birth to these babies, the name of their father still sealed behind her lips.

Today scores of families, married couples, throughout all New England States, reading daily newspaper stories have offered to adopt the children.

On the desk of Dr. Miriam Van Waters, superintendent of Sherborn Reformatory for Women, lie piles of as yet unanswered applications for the children.

"SHE WAS A GOOD KID"

Margaret Meuse was sentenced to Sherborn Reformatory last Oct. 24 from Malden court as a stubborn child.

"It was only for her own protection," probation officials said, those who had actually recommended her commitment. "She wouldn't name the father of her children.

"But she was a good kid, and came from a decent family. It was—one of those things."

At Sherborn, Margaret made friends, impressed by her courage and loyalty to the man who never came forward to take his share of the burden of bringing children into the world.

At Union Hospital, from Superintendent Ruth Humphrys down, Margaret Meuse made more friends.

TRANSFUSIONS FAIL

Weakened by the ordeal of the triple birth, she failed to respond to repeated blood transfusions and died.

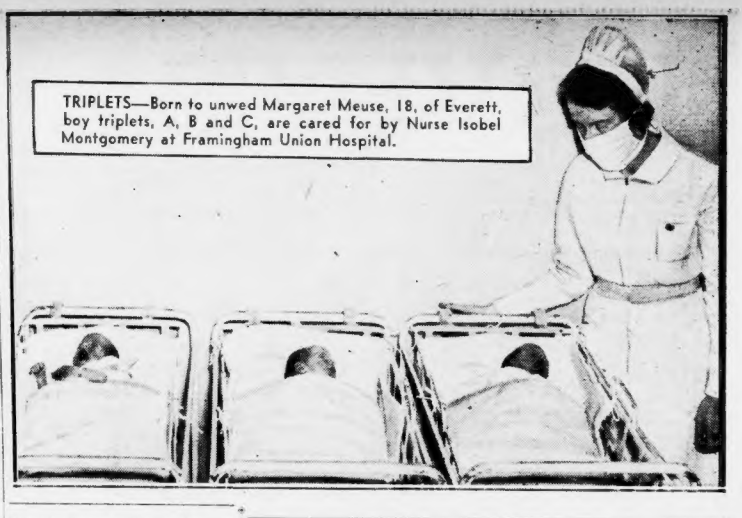
Today the townspeople of Framingham call at the hospital continually, to see the children, but the babies are too young. They can't even be brought to the glass of the nursery window.

And, from all over New England, phone calls are continually made, to find out how the babies are. Requests to adopt them still pour in.

They lie, unknowing, tucked in white blankets in the nursery cribs, awaiting the action of the state, not knowing the life they have to face nor the background of which they were born.

Around each wrist is a bracelet, made up of blue and white beads. Worked into the bracelet of the first born is a bead with the letter "A." For the next born is the letter "B." And for the youngest is "C."

Those are their only names.



TRIPLETS—Born to unwed Margaret Meuse, 18, of Everett, boy triplets, A, B and C, are cared for by Nurse Isobel Montgomery at Framingham Union Hospital.

Dad Good Mother, Too, Given Medal

He walked alone, among 36 mothers, but that was because he had been a good "mother" as well as father to his three growing youngsters.

He was George Hatch, 38, of Bowen st., South Boston, father of George, Jr., 13; Richard, 7, and Albert, 6, all members of Troop 6, Boy Scouts of America, South Boston.

Hatch walked alone with the mothers to receive—of all things—a "mother's medal" at the annual Mothers' Night award celebration held in the Phillips Congregational Church, South Boston. The outstanding mothers of Troop 6 members received bouquets of roses with their medals. Hatch did not get flowers.

The award of a mother's medal to a father caused a stir in the audience, but Scoutmaster Walter Fannon explained that while the award was unprecedented, Mr. Hatch is an unusual parent.

He had filled the role of mother and father well, after a separation from his wife three years ago; had sent the older children to school; had given them a good home; had also managed to care for the youngest one as would a mother.

Dizzy Battle in U. S. 'War'; Nab General

WITH THE TEXAS RED ARMY, May 16 (AP)—Grimy Red and Blue soldiers rested today after the war maneuvers' weirdest scramble brought a halt to the dizzy battle of Leesville, La.

Umpires said rules had been violated and the situation was such that it was wise to halt the affair, rest the men and get a fresh start on a new problem Monday.

So orders went out that an armistice was effective 16 hours before schedule.

The Blue forces, 45,000 strong, routed the Reds, driving them from Leesvile toward the Sabine river, after tank fighting up and down the city streets.

IGNORE WARNING SIGNS

Such incidents as over-anxious troops driving through road blocks in spite of warning signs, and the headlong rush of the Blues threw the problem out of kilter.

"We don't shoot real bullets," one army observer said, "and so allowances must be made for certain situations."

Red troops were forced back along a line generally north of Leesville yesterday. The famed Seventh mechanized cavalry brigade, a big tank and armored car outfit, was out on the southeast.

The Blues, advancing great distances with their traveling equipment, suddenly burst on Leesville from north and south, split the Red forces and chased them toward Texas.

The Seventh mechanized, it developed, was on the wrong flank and got to the scene too late to utilize its vast power.

CAPTURE OF GENERAL

The 20th combat team—artillery and infantry—raced 125 miles in a sweeping curve starting southeast of Leesville and entering the city from the south.

A fellow group of tanks dashed in and achieved one of war's rarities—capture of a general.

Maj. Gen. Kenyon Joyce was the unfortunate victim, but he and his staff, who were surprised in their headquarters near Leesville, were restored to action several hours later.

Reds and Blues, using tanks, fought through the city, anti-tank weapons spitting as crowds gaped from the sidewalks.

Down dusty roads the Reds fled, some of their units becoming disorganized in the rush.

Brig.-Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, whose nickname is "Skinny," had a close call. He was at a filling station when Blue tanks suddenly appeared. He stood quietly behind a station pump and the enemy failed to see him.

Which is the luckier bride?
JOAN'S HUSBAND BORROWED $500, when they got married, to pay for their honeymoon and to set up housekeeping. He paid it back in 12 equal monthly amounts. DOT'S HUSBAND HAD SAVED $500, before they were married, especially to pay for their wedding trip and to start their home. He put the money in the savings bank in 12 equal monthly deposits. The bank paid him $5.43—2% interest, the minimum annual dividend rate paid by any Mutual Savings Bank in Massachusetts.
THEY STARTED WITH $43.35 more

YOU'LL probably pick as the luckier bride the girl whose husband has already saved. For thrift—and the ability to save—as we all know, is mighty important for a happy home and a secure future. In fact, a recent nationwide survey reveals that seven out of ten marital quarrels concern money.

Be wise — save before not after you spend. Put aside a certain amount each month — and receive interest — rather than pay out the same sum each month and not only lose that interest, but also pay out additional interest as well.

To every bride and groom we say — be luckier, open a savings account now at your nearest Mutual Savings Bank. Join the millions who save regularly—have extra dollars when you need them.

EYEWITNESS SEES BRITISH HURL GERMAN TANKS BACK

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN BELGIUM, May 16—British forces in France swept into violent action today against the invading army of Nazi Germany all along the Belgian front running through Louvain.

Heavy artillery stabbed and pounded mercilessly, inflicting heavy casualties on German mechanized units which attempted to breach the Louvain canal with tanks directly in front of the British positions.

The attempt failed utterly, and although a few tanks succeeded in crossing the canal, they were either smashed to bits or compelled to retire.

The Germans obviously are attempting to drive through Louvain and crush Brussels under their heels. The effort has brought fighting on a tremendous scale.

BOTH LOSSES HEAVY

Louvain, dear to American memory because of its famed university that was rebuilt by American money after its destruction in the last invasion, is in the thick of it.

General action along the entire front held by British forces is in its first phase, but what probably will be the greatest battle in history may be said to be under way.

Mechanized units of the British army are spread out fanwise toward the east. Some of the advance units retired slowly, blowing up bridges east of Louvain to impede the German advance.

Fighting is hard and savage. The losses are probably heavy on both sides. Louvain itself, now deserted, has been subjected to incessant German bombings for the last five days. The beautiful library thus far has been spared, but two bombs landed within 100 yards of it.

From a vantage point not far from Louvain I had an opportunity to gaze eastward over a vast panorama of battle.

AMID BURSTING SHELLS

Over green fields just ripening into grain British shells screamed. From far away came flashes nad puffs of smoke from bursting shells. Finally, a British battery concealed in the woodland opened a crashing attack on German batteries far away.

Shells of heaviest calibre could be seen bursting and smashing visible objects two or three miles distant. I saw German shell-fire crash into a deserted village. Flashes of flame and heavy smoke told the fate of that luckless town.

Here the Germans had worked with incendiary bombs and shells, according to a granite-faced submajor directing the fire of British batteries.

After half an hour of watching the shellfire I went to witness the devastation wrought by a German bomber on a town where I had stayed a short while before.

It was just a miracle that a chance came along to move up to the front and got me out of the village before the bombers came. But for that bit of luck I might have been beneath the debris which buried four persons caught there that night when a high explosive bomb blew up the entire right wing of the hotel.

JANE: "And you must be sure to buy an Electrolux Gas Refrigerator, too, just as soon as you get back from . . ."

2. PEGGY: "We certainly would like one, but . . ."
JANE: "My dear, you can't afford not to have an Electrolux . . . not only because it is longer-lasting but because with a second gas appliance you quickly reach the lower-cost bracket for additional gas used."

3. PEGGY: "So you'd take advantage of a poor, innocent girl . . ."
JANE: "Get smart, dear! I'm letting you in on a real inside tip on thrift. When you have gas cooking and then employ extra gas for more uses you quickly reach the point (after 2,000 cubic feet a month) where additional gas is only 8c per 100 feet instead of 10c. And there's the 20% reduction — 1/5 more gas for your money."

4. PEGGY: "Now you're talking my language. And thanks for the tip. I want you to be our first guest, Jane, after we get nicely settled with our new Electrolux."

Nazis Keep War Away From Kaiser in Doorn

BERLIN, May 16 (AP)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II is safe and unharmed at Doorn, his Netherlands refuge since his flight in the last days of the World War, his family here has been informed.

Gen. Wilhelm von Dommes, administrator of the Hohenzollern family's properties, who was permitted by the German high command to motor into conquered Holland, reported he found the 81-year-old ex-monarch planning to remain at his retreat.

The German army marching in in the direction of Utrecht made a detour so as not to involve Doorn in possible action.

of secret German weapons, including new anti-tank defenses which were brought into play south of Sedan.

By these means, it was said, French tanks attacking in waves "were destroyed like wheat before the sweep of a scythe."

The French citadel at Longwy, an official announcement said, was taken by German troops at 6 a. m. Tuesday.

German authorities said the town was occupied after heavy street fighting.

Earlier the German high command demanded that military transport and construction of fortifications at Brussels cease immediately. Otherwise military objectives at the Belgian capital will be bombed, it was stated.

Nazis Claim Attack On 110-Mile Front

BERLIN, May 16 (AP)—German forces attacked heavily today along a 110-mile front from Antwerp to Sedan in the seventh day of the drive which already has netted them all of the Netherlands, except the province of Zeeland, half of Belgium and a small section of France.

The high command reported the Allies yesterday "accepted the fight" in the Antwerp fortifications northeast of Brussels and along the Dyle defense line from there south through central Belgium to Namur.

Southwest of Namur, 50 miles from Sedan, the high command said "our divisions expanded their successes" by crossing the Meuse and "again defeating French armored units."

French counter-attacks south of Sedan, it said, were repelled while the Germans pressed the attack toward the Maginot Line itself farther to the southwest to take into their hands more of the strip between the rival fortified lines.

Thus, the high command said, "between the Moselle and the Rhine we advanced our positions west of Saarlautern (nearly 100 miles southeast of Sedan) and near Lauterburg."

Lauterburg, near the Rhine, is about 150 miles airline southeast of Sedan.

Hand-in-hand with the furious fighting on the ground, German air forces saw heavy action. The high command reported it broke up enemy troop concentrations and destroyed tanks while losing only 18 planes compared to "definitely established losses of the opponents" yesterday of 98 planes.

BRUSSELS THREATENED

It declared two destroyers and three merchantmen were sunk by air bombs yesterday off the coasts of the Netherlands and Belgium and two destroyers and four merchantmen were "hit severely," while a submarine torpedoed a tanker and an armed merchantman.

Enemy flights over western Germany last night, the high command said caused "immaterial damage" but killed and injured a number of civilians.

The war continued in Norway. In far northern Narvik the Germans "again repulsed attacks, with heavy losses for the enemy."

Brussels was threatened with devastation from the air.

U. S. TO CLASH WITH JAPAN, MOSCOW NEWSPAPER PREDICTS

MOSCOW, May 16 (AP) — The government newspaper Izvestia asserts the European war is turning into a world conflict which will soon envelop the Mediterranean area and the Balkans and involve the United States and Japan in the Pacific.

"The imperialistic war begins the paper says today. "One billion, two hundred and fifty million men, or over one-half of mankind, already are drawn into the orbit of war in Europe and the Far East."

Izvestia asserts that differences between the British-French bloc and Italy in the Mediterranean and the Near East have reached a state of "extreme acuteness."

"Contradictions between the United States and Japan have been sharply aggravated," it says. "In connection with the beginning of the struggle for the 'Dutch inheritance' in Asia

Bay Stater Missing, One Fired On in War

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—An American ambulance driver, Lawrence A. Jump of Seameadows, Nantucket, Mass., attached to the French army, was reported missing today after German artillery bombarded the ambulance he was driving.

Official French reports to the American volunteers ambulance organization in Paris said the ambulance was heavily shelled during a local action in the Sarrguemines sector of the western front several days ago.

Another American ambulance was wrecked and three others were hit by shells, Col. James Sparks, head of the volunteers unit, announced.

U. S. WOMEN BOMBED

At the same time Miss Anne Morgan's Friends of France committee, which has been removing civilians from the French Ardennes department, reported to its Paris headquarters the unit had been bombed repeatedly in northern France.

Miss Morgan said its 10 ambulances and 20 cars were forced to cover in the woods to escape German planes. They returned to a village in the Aisne department when the Nazi aerial attacks made it impossible to continue the rescue work.

STOUGHTON MAN ATTACKED

Col. Sparks said it had not been determined whether Jump was killed, wounded or taken prisoner.

His ambulance was in flames when it was last seen by a French officer.

The ambulance driven by Charles Willen of New York city was reported wrecked. Willen said he counted more than 50 shrapnel holes in the car.

Ambulances driven by Paul Wallis of Albuquerque, N. M., Thomas Esten of Stoughton, Mass., and Jack Calhoun, an American resident of Paris, also were hit by shells.

Col. Sparks said the ambulances were plainly marked with red crosses.

Missing Driver Close Friend of Stoughton Man

Lawrence A. Jump, reported missing, and Thomas Esten, reported safe, each after his ambulance had been struck by German shells, were fast friends and were both well known in Boston and Massachusetts.

Jump is the son of the late Rev. Herbert A. Jump and Mrs. Jump, and had recently lived in Newton spending his summers in Nantucket. e is 28 years old and was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1936.

His father was equally well known, having had parishes in Manchester, N. H., Newton, and at the Union Congregational Church in Columbus ave., South End.

PASTOR BUILT SHIPS

The late Rev. Jump won fame as the "labor minister," donning clothes to work in Fore River shipyard, and preaching in behalf of better working conditions for seamen.

Lawrence Jump's brother Ellis also proved himself a hero when, in 1930, he carried an injured girl four miles down the side of Mount Madison in the White Mountains.

Lawrence enlisted with American volunteers in Paris recently. He had been in France at the outbreak of the war. His father died some years ago and his mother moved to Oakland, Cal.

While spending his summers at the family estate in Nantucket, Lawrence had formed a friendship with Thomas Esten, 26, of Stoughton.

WED DEDHAM GIRL

Esten, his mother revealed at her Walnut st., Stoughton, home today, is one of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Esten. His two brothers are in this country. His father owns a Canton underwear plant.

Five years ago, following his graduation from the Boston Museum School of Art, Thomas Esten married Barbara Blackburn of Dedham.

On his honeymoon he went to Spain, but the young couple's visit there was cut short by the Spanish war; then, last summer, they went to Paris so Esten could continue his art studies.

His wife is now at work in Paris

YOUTH COUNCIL TO MEET

BRITISH "TRIPLE THREAT"—British pilots stand in front of secret bomber, great numbers of which are performing triple duty against Nazis these days. The plane, known as the Bristol-Beaufort, not only has machine guns firing from forward positions but carries a power-operated gun turret in its tail. It can travel at 300 m.p.h., carries crew of four, and can be used as long-range bomber, torpedo bomber or general reconnaisance plane.

SUNDAY ADVERTISER

GREECE GUARDS BORDER

ATHENS, May 16 (AP)—Greece poured troop reinforcements today into her mountainous frontier region facing Italian-occupied Albania, just across the entrance of the Adriatic from the heel of the Italian boot.

Apparently the Greeks were feeling the pinch of Allied and Italian rivalry for strategic position in the eastern Mediterranean. However, insecurity of communications from Athens, by way of Budapest, the channel of this dispatch, and perhaps Greek censorship obscured the full meaning of the troop movements.

(The telephone connection from Athens to Budapest was broken in the middle of the dispatch.)

It was reported, anew without confirmation, that Great Britain was pressing Greece for permission to establish naval bases on Greek islands.

The British-French battle fleet based at Alexandria, Egypt, had put to sea for "scheduled maneuvers" and this caused new uneasiness among the Greeks.

Steel Shares Lead Advance

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Rails and aircrafts led a selective advance in the stock market today.

Most other groups trailed along. Trading was brisk at the start.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel were again in the van of the forward push.

Cotton was mixed. Rubber declined sharply. Wheat and corn at Chicago moved swiftly higher. The pound sterling and the French franc were steady.

Late War Bulletins

ROME, May 16 (AP)—Students of the English, Scotch and Canadian ecclesiastical colleges left for London today, occupying three cars on the morning's Paris express. Only the rectors and a few assistants stayed behind and they were settling their affairs.

ISTANBUL, May 16 (AP)—An exodus of Italian nationals from Turkey is under way. Italian employes in factories and on ships gave notice of their immediate departure.

NANCY, France, May 16 (AP)—Nine air raid alarms kept Nancy awake all night. An undisclosed number of persons were killed and wounded by German bombs.

LONDON, May 16 (AP)—The Brussels radio broadcast today that the Belgian capital was optimistic and calm and that the public had confidence in "the field army, the defenders of Liege and the Allies."

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—The German embassy staff from Brussels was detained under military guard by order of the French government today at the frontier opposite the Swiss town of Valorbe. The staff, en route to Switzerland, will not be permitted to proceed until the Belgian embassy staff is safely out of Germany.

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—Leon Degrelle, Belgian Rexist (Fascist) leader, who was arrested when Germany invaded the Low Countries, was brought into France today with 77 other political prisoners.

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 16 (AP)—The entire staff of the League of Nations was informed today that, in the event of an invasion of Switzerland, it would be reduced sharply and leave its palace on the shores of Lake Leman for "a safe place." The new headquarters would be in Vichy, France, officials said.

Victory Sure, Claims Reynaud

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—Premier Reynaud told the cheering Chamber of Deputies today France would be victorious against a Germany which was throwing her all into one desperate push to the west.

"When all can seem lost," Reynaud declared, "the world will see what France is capable of."

He recalled that Germany had declared she was going to win the war in two months.

to the Meuse. In this area, the fighting was characterized principally by artillery duels between opposing fortifications.

In the Sedan region itself, the French aimed the Germans were blocked in an attempt to deepen a pocket by drive into northern France yesterday.

In the Sedan area, French pursuit planes shot down one of a group of enemy reconnaissance planes this morning.

SITUATION "SERIOUS"

A French war office spokesman acknowledged that the German army, following up advantages gained after crossing the Meuse between Sedan and Namur, continued to go forward in the face of a strong allied opposition.

A great battle is progressing, and the situation is "serious," he said.

However, the French remained confident of their ability to restore control of situation which at the moment admittedly "very confused."

The French reported heavy artillery fire east of Sedan, along the French-Luxembourg frontier, as well as farther east in the Vosges mountain area.

F. D. IN DEFENSE PLEA

ness measures. A swift response by both Houses was generally conceded.

"BILLIONS FOR DEFENSE."

Two of the President's defense collaborators left no room for doubt on the gravity which the administration attached to immediate army-navy needs.

"We are in no ten-cent auto game," said Navy Secretary Edison. "We must play this game with blue chips."

War Secretary Woodring mobilized the "millions for defense" quotation of early American history, saying:

"The time is nearing when we must spend billions of dollars to defend this great democracy."

The President's decision to deliver his message in person was not announced until 10 o'clock last night, giving Capitol officials an unusual hurry-up job of arranging the necessary arrangements.

SHORT CUT FAVORED

Congress showed readiness to take a short cut to get the defense program rolling. Chairman Thomas (D.) of Oklahoma said that a Senate military appropriations subcommittee was holding open the House-approved $785,000,000 army supply bill so that the President's additional recommendations could be incorporated.

These, he said, probably would be written into the bill without additional committee hearings in order to get it before the Senate at the earliest possible moment.

Prior to the President's message two senators—Pepper (D.) of Florida, and Austin (R.) of Vermont, declared themselves in favor of scrapping the country's neutrality policy for one of non-belligerency in order to give active aid to the Allies.

Pepper told reporters that the Neutrality Law and the Johnson Act forbidding loans to war debt defaulters should be revised. As a "last resort," he added, the United States fleet should be "loaned" to Great Britain.

Fury of Plane War Bared by Reporter

By KENNETH T. DOWNS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES ON THE BELGIUM FRONTIER, May 16—We still have not reached what is conventionally known as the front. But the things I have seen here in zone once considered "behind the lines" I shall never forget.

The events of yesterday spin before my eyes today like the disjointed flashes of a crezy dream—constantly wailing sirens in every town we passed through . . . Low-flying strafing planes . . . Thousands of Belgian refugees pouring aimlessly across the frontier in every sort of vehicle on wheels . . . The dull bumph! bumph! of falling bombs . . . Billowing smoke from a village ablaze . . . The sinister black shapes of Dornier "flying pencils" zooming low . . . The inevitable French chasers . . . That Belgian woman who was smiling in such a funny way as she blurted the tragic story of her two-day flight with her family when I stuck my head into her packed sedan (It took me a minute or two to realize she was not smiling but crying) . . . The sudden mottling of the sky by gunbursts . . . Those captured German pilots . . . That Liege man who was shocked speechless when a dud shell buried itself into the ground near him Friday and who is still unable to say a word . . . Ambulances coming back from the front . . . The blood-spattered parachute of a German pilot who jumped too late . . . Incessant alerts . . . Farmers still working in the fields, but with their eyes cocked skyward.

NAZI BOY'S PLIGHT

I don't know yet what the score was in yesterday's air fighting but it must have been tremendous. There was scarcely a moment throughout the day when I did not see or hear air fighting over the 200-odd miles I traveled.

At one point alone I saw the survivors of the crews of three downed German planes brought in. Only the machine-gunner was alive in the first machine, which was brought down by a French fighter. His pilot was killed and he crashed in the plane.

This machine-gunner was a boy of 21. He was brought in on a stretcher and he whimpered softly as he waited for a doctor to attend his smashed shoulder and insides.

He was dressed in a cheap cotton jacket and trousers and felt slippers that looked strangely similar to a prison uniform. He told a French pilot he'd had only 20 hours of flying since he was taken from the regular army to serve as an air force machine-gunner.

Only a bloody parachute was brought in from the next downed plane, telling its own mute story of the fate of its owner.

SULKY LIEUTEANANT

Both the pilot and gunner of the next plane had more luck and managed to parachute safely. The gunner was a lieutenant wating a smart uniform with a Nazi insignia. He was tall, blond, round-headed and sulky.

The pilot was 22 and looked indifferent about the whole business.

Both members of this crew wore service stripes from the Polish campaign. One couldn't help wonder how many lives they had taken in how many places before a French fighter finished their careers yesterday afternoon.

A French officer told me this plane had been engaged in strafing highways for military and civilians alike when brought down.

Refugees are pouring in by the tens of thousands from Belgium.

Lana Turner Suffers Collapse, in Hospital

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, May 16 (INS)—Surprising, indeed, is the word that pretty little red-headed Lana Turner, bride of three months, is in the Santa Monica Hospital, registered under an assumed name.

Not even the Metro-Goldwyn Mayer studio knows that Lana suddenly collapsed and had to be taken to the hospital for a complete rest. Only her mother and her bridegroom, Artie Shaw, are permitted to see her, and I have been sworn to secrecy not to divulge the name under which she is registered.

The Turner child, emotional, high strung and impulsive, has worked very hard to make a success of her sudden marriage to the also highly strung emotional orchestra leader.

She is sensitive on the subject of her overnight elopement and has determined to make the old adage "married in haste, repent at leisure" untrue as far as she is concerned.

While there has never been any talk of separation, her close friends say she is finding it difficult to be married and have a successful career at the same time.

Married February 15 in Yuma, Ariz., after their first dinner engagement, her elopement was the sensation of the hour. Shortly afterward she walked out on her M-G-M contract, saying that her marriage meant more than her career, and she joined her bridegroom in New York. Later she and M-G-M kissed and made up and she has just finished a picture at the studio.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Follow These Family Contest Rules

These are the rules governing the Typical American Family in Massachusetts Contest:

1—The Typical American Family Competition, conducted by the Boston Sunday Advertiser and Boston Evening American, in co-operation with the New York World's Fair of 1940, is open only to citizens of the United States residing in Massachusetts.

2—The name and address of each family, with the number of children, boys and girls, must be submitted on the official entry form, together with a letter of not more than 300 words describing the family and explaining why it should be selected as the Typical American Family in Massachusetts. No photographs will be returned.

3—Entries will NOT be judged by the literary style or excellence of the letters submitted, but strictly on the qualifications and characteristics of the family.

4—A recent photograph or clear snapshot of the family must accompany the entry.

5—The entry of a candidate family may be submitted by a relative or friend, or by a member of the family.

6—Entries close on Saturday, June 15, at midnight. The complete form must be mailed or delivered to the Advertiser-American Typical American Family Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass., before that time.

7—The selection of the Typical Family will be made by a committee of distinguished Massachusetts men and women well qualified to establish the requirements of a Typical American Family, and the committee's decision will be final.

8—The parents and two children of the Typical Family selected, the eldest child to be not over 18, will be transported from Boston to the New York World's Fair and back by automobile, with all meals and hotel expenses paid. They will be entertained at the Fair for one week, beginning July 22, without any cost whatever to themselves. The Family, while at the Fair, will live for one week in a completely furnished house built inside the Fair Grounds in accordance with the standards set up for home construction by the Federal Housing Administration. The house accommodates four persons, and for this reason only four members of the Family selected may go to the Fair. The Family will have complete freedom of action as to what they want to do and see. They will, in fact, live each day as they would during any normal holiday period.

9—It is understood that entrants give permission to publish photographs and stories of their Family.

10—This competition is not open to employes of the Boston Sunday Advertiser-Boston Evening American, nor of other publications or advertising media.

So Long, Coalman! Sol Is Taking Over

Throw another sun ray on the hearthstone, Horace—it's getting chilly.

Husbands may hear this within a very few years, according to Dr. Charles G. Abbott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, world famous weather expert, who is conducting scientific lectures at Harvard.

"Soon we will heat our homes, cook our food and run our plants and factories with the rays of the sun which now are wasted," Dr. Abbott declared in an interview.

He predicted the sun's rays will be stored in giant utilization plants and then used for heat during the winter months.

Dr. Abbott further declared that science had perfected a method by which weather conditions may be predicted two weeks in advance. The system will be put into use within a year.

Data collected at more than 30 experimental stations throughout the world in the last 10 years shows the increase or decrease in the number of sunspots is reflected in the change of temperature and is followed by rain or dry spells on this planet, he said.

"A minute change, even one-tenth of one per cent in the number of sunspots, causes a change in temperature of as much as five degrees," he said. "The variation in temperature doesn't follow immediately but at definite intervals from one to three months."

The rays controlling the weather are "beyond the rainbow," according to Dr. Abbott and are not visible to the naked eye.

He said he intends to establish several new observation stations in this country to continue his observations, which have been interrupted by the war in Europe and unsettled conditions in other parts of the world.

Greyhound Line Strike Is Called

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16 (AP)—The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen called a strike of bus drivers against Pacific Greyhound Lines in seven states today in a dispute involving union jurisdiction.

Company officials promptly declared schedules would be maintained without interruption.

Picket lines were formed in front of the Greyhound's San Francisco offices, but buses continued rolling in.

Bus drivers were ordered to strike at 5 a. m. by F. W. Coyle, special representative of the independent union, who said the walkout resulted from Greyhound's refusal to recognize a National Labor Relations Board ruling designating the trainmen as bargaining agent for the drivers.

Company spokesmen, declaring the Board's order was up for court review, said they would abide by their contracts with the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes' Union.

Milton Patrolman Shot Dead by Bandit

partially hidden beneath the bedclothes.

The officers said, however, that he appeared to answer the description of a bandit engaged in a hold up slaying in Cambridge about six years ago.

As a result, Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy, Capt. John Canney and Lieut. Edward Glennon, all of Cambridge, went to Milton Hospital to view and question "Brooks" in connection with the Cambridge case.

This was the slaying of aged and eccentric Adolph Somers in his Vicol plant, East Cambridge, in October of 1933.

Capt. Canney worked in the Somers case, in which one man was arrested and later mysteriously bailed out of Charles Street Jail—never to be seen again.

Meanwhile, Papineau and Zukauskis, both terrified and trembling while being questioned, insisted they had no part in "Brooks'" attempt to escape custody, and Papineau, according to police, declared that Zukauskis took no part in the earlier holdup and did not know about it.

Although Papineau first asserted he did not know "Brooks" had a gun, police said he admitted later that he had seen "Brooks" with a revolver during the garage holdup in Chardon st.

According to Papineau he first became acquainted with "Brooks," under the name of Beaulieu, a couple of weeks ago, in Dover st., South End.

PUZZLE FOR POLICE

Involving officials in somewhat of a legal dilemma, Papineau said that he met "Brooks" last night and they went to a West End restaurant in Green st., where they had a couple of beers.

Then "Brooks," according to Papineau, said he was going to borrow a car from his brother-in-law at the Chardon st. garage. They walked to the garage and went to the second floor, the prisoner admitted, and then he saw that "Brooks had a revolver in his hand.

The attendant was held up and robbed of the $60, according to Papineau, after which the pair took the car in which they were later pursued and halted in Milton.

Before starting out on their cruise, which Papineau said was merely "a ride," they went to South Boston, he explained, and picked up Zukauskis, who did not know of the holdup.

RECALLS CARBARN CASE

Questioned by Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing at Milton station regarding the shooting of Officer Lee, Zukauskis said:

"I didn't hear a thing except 'Boom' on one side of me and 'Boom' on the other side. There were 'Booms' all around. We didn't know he (Brooks) had a gun."

As a result of the case, considerable discussion arose among police and the district attorney as to whether this was a case comparable to the carbarn case, in which three men were electrocuted for a holdup-slaying committed by one of their number, John J. Deveraux.

Although Deveraux was alone when he shot a night watchman to death at Waltham carbarn, Edward Heinlein and John J. McLaughlin were found guilty of first degree murder under the statute which holds all participants equally guilty if a murder is committed during the process of a felony in which all are engaged.

Armed robbery is a felony and automobile theft is a felony, but whether or not today's trio can be viewed in the same way that the carbarn bandits were viewed is a subject of debate.

DEWING STATES VIEWS

There were some officials who brought up the point that the felony commission phase might have been ended when the three men today were taken into custody and placed in the police car.

In this view, "Joe Brooks" might alone face the murder charge, Dewing said.

"After talking with Papineau and Zukauskis, I am satisfied that this case involves the subject of planned armed robbery. Boston police will make proper complaints today.

"I learned from questioning of the two men that at least one had a gun, and that, no doubt, the man called Joseph Brooks was responsible for the death of Officer Lee.

Food Secret Still Seen As Allyn Death Clue

WESTFIELD, May 16—Although police have discarded the fantastic theory that Dr. Lewis B. Allyn was shot to death for his refusal to sell a mystery food formula, friends of the slain scientist today still cling to that possibility.

Among them was Dr. Charles Wilson, retired head of the science department at State Teachers' College here, who revealed that Dr. Allyn had discovered a concentrated food which would keep soldiers alive for weeks on the field of battle.

GAMELIN, FRANCE'S MAN OF HOUR, HOLDS FATE OF ALLIES

Ghost Guides Genius

By FRED PERKINS

Of a long line of distinguished soldier and statesman ancestors, his great grandfather on his mother's side is the favorite forebear of French Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

Great grandpop was military commandant of the fortified town of Phalsbourg when allied German and Russian armies invaded France in 1814.

Surrounded by an overwhelming force of the enemy, the doughty old fighter brusquely refused to surrender. He doffed his purple silk nightcap, poured himself a brace of rum from a demijohn he kept on the mantel and told the German-Russian envoys:

"When your boasted shellfire sets ablaze the handkerchief in my breast pocket, I will consider your demands. But until then, I will continue to defend my city."

Chances are the Nazi generals now unleashing upon France one of the greatest attacks in all world history never heard of General Gamelin's indomitable maternal kinsman, gone to a good soldier's Last Bivouac a long century past.

This wouldn't be the first time the heel-clicking, stiff-necked master minds at the controls of a seemingly irresistible German war machine have failed to take into consideration a vital psychological factor.

'AIDE TO JOFFE

Yet dealing with a foe like the French—and with a defense strategist like chunky, grizzled, hard-bitten little Maurice Gustave Gamelin—Hitler's blitzkrieg trigger-men can't afford the costly luxury of over-confidence.

Sweeping triumphantly on toward Paris in 1914, Von Kluck made the fatal mistake of counting his victory chickens before they were hatched.

And then, as now, the French had Gamelin and the tradition of his rum-swigging, purple-nightcapped great grandfather on their side.

Gamelin was a mere military tyro of 42, in those days. He was aide to General "Papa" Joffre, a last-ditch, back-to-the-wall scrapper of his own formidable ilk.

Never so dangerous as when backed pressed, Gamelin and Joffre together planned and executed the brilliant and audacious counter attack which halted Von Kluck's gray-green juggernaut at the very walls of Paris in the first battle of the Marne.

GENERALISSIMO MAURICE GUSTAVE GAMELIN
'Five Feet, Four Inches of Fighting Dynamite'

Out from the beleaguered city swept the famous taxicab army, the unprotected German flank was pierced and shattered, France was saved on the brink of black disaster.

DRIVE STOPPED

That time, Gamelin and Joffre turned back an enemy thrust backed by seven German armies totalling 1,700,000 of the finest and best equipped troops of Europe.

Again in 1918, with victory almost in their grasp, the Germans were successfully smashing through the Allied lines between British-held and French-held sectors.

Reinforced by scores of veteran divisions released from the Russian front, the attack seemed to be gaining irresistible momentum.

Gas-shrouded British batteries were silenced. Gallant infantry units, French and British, died to a man, and depleted reserve divisions reeled back disorganized and confused.

To plug the gap, Foch rushed forward his 6th French army corps. Gamelin's 9th Division, first in position, faced six times its number of advancing Germans.

The tremendous enemy push was powered by more than 1,000,000 men, column after column, corps after corps, complete with ammunition trains, hospital units, field and siege artillery.

COUNTER ATTACK

Fighting an almost suicidal rear-guard action, Gamelin's puny force had two choices of action. It could withdraw its shattered remnants—or it could gamble annihilation against possible glory by staging a sudden counter attack!

No doubt, remembering his fire-eating maternal great grandpa, Gamelin gave the order to advance. That was the beginning of the miracle French and American defense maneuver of the second battle of the Marne.

So the Germans lost the war of 1914-1918.

And now they're trying again.

Once more the river Meuse is running red with brave men's blood.

Once more Maurice Gustave Gamelin—grayer and quieter and older, but no less deadly dangerous an antagonist than of yore is matching German power with Gallic doggedness and wit.

Since September 1, 1939, Gamelin has been Supreme Commander of all French armed forces, a title not held by any soldier of his nation since Napoleon I.

MAN OF HOUR

He is probably the world's greatest student of Napoleon's military strategy. He is credited with being able to recite from memory every army order Napoleon ever issued, specifying to whom each command was directed, where and when and to what purpose and effect.

It is dramatically appropriate, too, that Gamelin, France's Man of the Hour, should be meeting the Nazi West Front blitzkrieg at historic Sedan in a battle area which has seen epochal bloodshed all down through the centuries since Lucius Quintulus Varus' 20,000 Roman Legionnaires were cut to pieces in fierce hand to hand fighting by the Teuton chieftan Arminus and his barbaric German hordes.

It was at Sedan that the French lost the disastrous War of 1870, when Napoleon III surrendered his army of 100,000.

That war beat France to her knees and cost her the provinces of Alsace-Lorraine.

The victorious peace of 1918-1919 won them back again. Just before the Nov. 11 Armistice, American troops took the heights of Sedan. But the French were permitted to occupy the city wiping out the old score of 1870.

HE'S DYNAMITE

With one war lost and one war won, France is playing off the rubber now.

Victory or defeat may hinge upon the judgment, resourcefulness and courage of Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

He's not only the generalissimo of the French but he is also the head of all the Allied armies.

He is 67, and the gray of his hair and mustache is frosting to white. Pink cheeked, diminutive, fond of dark civilian clothes, deceptively quiet and mild of manner, he's five feet four inches of fighting dynamite.

He did his pre-World War soldiering with some of the hardest-boiled outfits in the French regular army.

He put in three years with the famous Third Algerian Tirailleurs, one of the fierce, straight-haired North African Colonial divisions that used to keep tab of later Western Front victories by the number of severed German ears strung on the neck amulets of its stalwart six-foot knife fighters.

A BATTERY OF FRENCH ARTILLERY IN ACTION NEAR THE MARNE IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR
Brilliant Counter Attack by Gamelin and Joffre Halted Germans Here in First Marne Battle

BITTER FIGHTER

He also did a turbulent hitch with one of the divisions of beret-wearing Alpine Chasseurs, the Blue Devils of World War legend.

Even after the World War, in which he won distinction enough to last most men a lifetime, he kept his hand in by serving in the bloody suppression of the Druse revolt in Syria.

That was one of those no-quarter, just-too-bad-for-the-wounded Colonial wars in which a general gets a medal he doesn't need if he's lucky—and gets shopped slowly to pieces by enemy womenfolk if he has the tough break to be captured!

Gamelin was on hand and in authority when French war planes wiped out 1456 civilians in the native quarters of Damascus, thus proving that he's not too squeamish to fight a bit of totalitarian warfare himself, if given provocation.

His hobbies are reading books on philosophy and painting landscapes in oil.

He tells his friends who are legion—that he's really itching for world peace, so that he can enter up on his research and his brushwork.

URGED ACTION

In the interests of such peace, best guaranteed to his mind by French and British military supremacy, he's entirely willing to take on the best blitzkrieg his old-time enemies, les Boches, can produce for his professional attention.

In the pre-Munich days, when the Germans were just building their Westwall or Siegfried Line, Gamelin did his best to get Franco-British approval of a plan of his to grab the Nazi thistle with a firm hand, once for all.

He said he'd take his crack French attack troops through the Rhine defenses "like through marmalade."

The appeasement theorists wouldn't give Gamelin the go-order when he wanted it.

And now the Nazi "marmalade" is poison ivy or worse.

Nor was Gamelin's inaction in the Munich era his only professional heart-scald.

PLAN FOR ALPS

He wanted to check the German reoccupation of the Rhineland in the first place. He wanted to take a French army into Spain to prevent the Italian-German-backed Franco victory that added the Spanish frontier to those enemy borders France must guard.

One of Gamelin's pet mental diversions is studying plans for invasion of Italy through the passes of the Alps, first used successfully by Hannibal and his Carthaginian war-elephants.

If Benito Mussolini should decide the pickings will be best as an active belligerent ally of Hitler, he'll be hearing from Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

And unless the modern Italian army has infantrymen who can "take it" better than they did on the Western Front in 1917-1918, they wont like what General Gamelin has been thinking up to keep them busy.

ARMY LOVES HIM

There's nothing in the least suprising to little General Gamelin in the Nazi invasion of Belgium and Holland. He expected the attack through Belgium in 1914—and he expected it again in 1940!

To meet it now, he has the same type of French divisions which immortalized themselves at Verdun and on the Meuse. He's better prepared now than "Papa" Joffre was in 1914.

Given any kind of breaks, he doesn't expect France will have to adopt such desperate slogans as "They shall not pass" and "Arise, ye dead to hold the battlefields of the present unpleasantness."

He hopes there'll be no Trench of the Bayonets in 1940 Verdun to prove Frenchmen will hold their ground dead as well as alive.

Yet Gamelin is no showman, when it comes to buying reputation with windrows of French slain. He's noted for his reluctance to gain temporary victories with bloody casualty lists. He is known not to support the theory that the French poilu is expendable like daily rations or boot dubbing.

The French rank and file have a warm affection for little Maurice Gustave Gamelin. And the French army, by tradition, is one that takes seriously the democratic custom by which officers are familiarly addressed even by the lowest privates as "mon lieutenant," "mon capitaine," "mon general."

Gamelin is supposed to know by his first name every officer under his command. Yet he never fails to elicit prompt obedience and whole hearted respect.

WON HARD WAY

Gamelin won his valor medals the hard way. So he doesn't have to take any guff from noncombatants or behind the lines brass trusters.

It was not of his choosing that he didn't go through the Siegfred Line "like marmalade" when the going was good.

Now he'll handle the Nazi West Front poison ivy with firm but not reckless resolution.

At least, that's the guess of those who "know him when."

Maybe the Germans will know him better before the great battle now in progress in the Meuse valley has been fought to its history-making conclusion.

And maybe, too the Nazis will have reason to remember Maurice Gustave Gamelin's breast-pocket-handkerchief-wearing great grandfather on his mother's side.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE should be closely attentive to the explanations which have been given the British nation for its present situation.

It does not concern the United States directly that Great Britain muddled into a war for which it was not prepared.

But it does concern us deeply that we have so closely emulated the British course that we also are unprepared for war, and even less prepared for defense.

SECRETARY EDISON
Hits Unpreparedness

If the United States desires to emulate Britain at all, it should distinguish between the many good and wise policies and practices of the British government and people and the equally numerous examples of British folly.

It was certainly British folly, as Mr. Churchill said in the Commons debate on the Norwegian debacle, to let the most likely enemy of Britain gain a frightening superiority in air power.

And the United States has not only emulated this British folly, but has augmented and supplemented it with an inexplicably astounding folly of its own.

There has been recent and astonishing testimony to this fact.

Rear-Admiral Clark H. Woodward reports, for instance, that after all American naval vessels now building are completed "we shall have only 75 per cent as many ships as we had in 1922."

And what happened in 1922?

Why, we SCRAPPED a major part of our naval equipment under the terms of the Washington and London treaties, while other great maritime powers were scrapping blueprints.

In further testimony, Secretary of the Navy Edison has written a letter to a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee revealing that the United States Navy has acquired exactly EIGHTY-SEVEN new airplanes since the start of the European war.

Even with actual war raging in Europe and Asia, the United States has persisted in the same folly of unpreparedness which now has England desperate and fearful.

We are also indifferent to the need for adequately trained air personnel, as Senator Henry C. Lodge emphasizes:

"There is a tremendous shortage of pilots and instructors, due to neglect of the air force during the last eight or ten years."

We are not building airplanes in quantity and quality necessary for American defense.

We are not training enough pilots and mechanics to operate them if we did build them.

We are not even replacing the battle-craft we scrapped in our blind folly.

Why should the United States further emulate and pursue the follies for which Mr. Churchill indicts the harassed British Empire?

THE WORLD'S FAIR, now open for its second season, has been called the Front Door to New England.

Though this is neither the purpose of the exposition nor the intention of its sponsors, the slogan is none the less accurate and appropriate.

FAIR'S TRYLON
New and Fanciful

GREAT STONE FACE
Old and Real

A great many of the thousands who will travel hundreds of miles across the country to see the Flushing Fairyland are certain to want also to see Boston, the White Mountains, the Maine coast and the countless other attractions that are distinctly and peculiarly New England.

The Fair's Trylon cannot fail to fascinate the visitor who looks upon this interesting and imaginative structure for the first time.

But that fascination will hardly equal the visitor's desire to gaze upon the Old Man of the Mountains in New Hampshire or to drop in on the Massachusetts village or Connecticut town, which his ancestors very probably left early in the last century to begin life anew in the Middle or Far West.

In large measure, the Fair is fanciful and somewhat whimsical. New England on the other hand is REAL, SOUND and SUBSTANTIAL.

Both will interest tourists.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, May 16—I lunched Tuesday with a group of people in Washington who are serving as a voluntary faculty in the Federal Workers' School.

This school is not as academic as it sounds, because, while there are many courses on such difficult subjects as our monetary system, they also have classes in dancing to lend a light and recreational touch. They serve to draw people together in social groups and are valuable.

I wish I had time to attend some of these courses myself, for the faculty is one of the most interesting groups of people I have met in a long time.

I returned to the White House in time to receive some members of the adult education classes in Philadelphia, who were here on a visit to their capital.

At 4 o'clock the cabinet ladies and I gave our annual tea for the wives of the Representatives. At this tea, which is a leisurely affair, the North Carolina "Eastern Carolina Symphonic Singers" sang for us.

GOVERNOR CLYDE HOEY has sponsored this group and they are on their first tour. Since the choir is chosen from small high school groups in North Carolina, what they are able to do is really remarkable.

I could not help thinking what a gain it is for the young people to sing together and to have this opportunity to travel through parts of their country, which they might never see in any other way.

In the evening, Mrs. Melvyn Douglas and I left the White House at 7 o'clock to go to the National Press Club, where the dinner was held by the sponsoring group and attended by the delegates to the meeting of the unemployed women.

The findings and recommendations of the jury were read by Mrs. Douglas and will be presented to Congress.

It is extremely interesting that women, who perhaps are not much in sympathy with some of the demands of these unemployed women until they come face to face with them, have recommended practically everything which the women came down here to ask.

The Representatives and Senators who spoke were much impressed by the meal they were given. A small amount of stew and one prune for desert cost about five cents, about the amount available per person in the average home where they are living on a woman's WPA earnings of about $44 a month.

I imagine the gentlemen were hungry, and yet every one of us is sufficiently well fed not really to feel any hardship from going without one meal.

THE IMPORTANT THING is to realize that a meal such as this continued day after day, month in and month out, makes for malnutrition, which is even more serious for children than for adults.

I am catching up on mail this morning and going out to Madiera School, where the young ladies are to ask me questions, which I hope I shall be able to answer.

I AM AGAIN asked if I can be persuaded to give up smoking cigars. Again must tell of a beautiful night in White Mountains of New Hampshire some years ago. "Do you love me?" the girl asked. "Yes," I said. "Would you do anything for me?" she continued. "Anything," I answered. (The moonlight is very strong in the White Mountains). "Would you die for me?" she asked. "Gladly," said I. "Would you give up smoking cigars for me," she inquired. "No," I said. She married an oil man from Tampico.

ABOARD the Athenia, torpedoed by a submarine, was the Rev. Joseph V. O'Connor. This is an excerpt from his account of that horrible experience: "A woman holding a baby was pinned beneath the stairs. We raised the baby to safety and attempted to help the mother. She was beyond help, however, for her left leg had been amputated and her body so twisted and wedged under the stairs it was impossible to move her. I ministered to her on the spot, and in a few minutes she died." That's what they call war. That is what Hitler is attempting to justify.

WHAT IS HITLER'S great weakness? And also Mussolini's? It is the fear their people will lose faith in them. Any propaganda which seems to have a tendency to weaken the aforementioned faith gives Adolf and Benito the jitters . . . Ask the nearest quiz expert to answer this offhand. What nation paid its war debt in full to the United States? . . . "Although you may have imagined him to be older, Jack Dempsey has just celebrated his 37th birthday," says a Broadway columnist. When he fought Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919 Jack certainly looked older than 16 to me. But then I am a poor judge of ages.

A MAN who goes to church makes a better husband than a man who does not. A girl who has worked before marriage makes a better wife than one who has not. So say Dr. Ernest W. Burgess and Dr. Leonard C. Cottrell, who have made an extensive study of what makes a marriage successful. These gentlemen also claim overweight women make poor wives. A man who has been an only child is a bad selection as a matrimonial partner. A "joiner," one who belongs to many organizations, usually makes a good husband. If the husband is a well educated man and the wife is not, or vice versa, chances of matrimonial happiness are slim.

A GENTLEMAN whose beloved wife weighs 165 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches tall sends in following clipped from the Irish Digest: "Heavy women command more attention than thin ones and usually have more friends. They are not so apt to be preoccupied with clothes. Women who think of nothing but clothes bore men because they haven't time to be nice to them."

NEW YORK, May 16—Captain Concannon, Lieutenant Peter Pondera and Sergeant Brown all have submitted their resignations to the N. Y. C. Police Department . . . Captains Lustbader and Mooney also are expected to resign. Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who conducted the police departmental trials, has had enough. He insists that he won't preside over any more of these trials . . . The South American trip to be made by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., in connection with his aviation tie-up, is slated for July. If his father should seek re-election, F. D., Jr., will have to decide upon campaigning or pursuing this new career. In June he'll go to Hollywood to help Jimmy in personal matters . . . Jack Dempsey's next big venture will be a cross-country chain of Dempsey Hamburger Stands.

After the funeral they reminisced about half-forgotten days, when a press card was their most prized possession. THEY'RE STARRING in the greatest love story ever told—"Romeo and Juliet"—but their own story is far more significant and involves emotions of which Shakespeare never dreamed. For Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh, who will be free to marry in July, already have made their plans—of what to do when their current Broadway engagement is over. Olivier, one of Hollywood's most coveted actors, will return to England to fight. And Miss Leigh will return with him.

VALENTINA SARRA, the Chicago photographer who has begun to operate in Manhattan, needed a husky athlete to pose for a photo of a Roman gladiator. He tested all the models sent by the agencies and found them wanting . . . Sarra therefore went to Stillman's gymnasium, where he induced a wrestler named Abe Wilson to pose in the strange costume. The wrestler, reluctant to have his friends recognize this fall from grace, finally consented—but on condition that he be permitted to wear a false beard, rare among the gladiators of Rome, but sufficient to mask his identity.

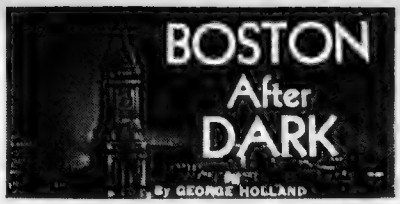
DR. ALEX LOUDON, the Minister representing The Netherlands, attended the Spice Institute's convention last week, where he was complimented upon the beauty of his wife. "She's beautiful," Dr. Loudon was assured. "To us she represents the typical Dutch beauty." Dr. Loudon beamed and informed: "This typical Dutch beauty of mine was born in Buffalo."



THEY WERE KNOWN TO BROADWAY as the "Loomis kids" eight or nine years ago, when Georgie White, trying to recoup a two-million fortune dropped in the market, cast them for his first show of the depression . . . Practically everybody except Dame Mae Whitty and Sophie Tucker are known as "kids" along Broadway . . . Particularly the young women of the ensemble—who are never called anything else but "the kids"—and youngsters like the Loomis sisters, Virginia and Maxine, who were just breaking in to the big time.

IN THE CASE OF THE LOOMISES it would have been inaccurate to refer to them in any other way, unless you were of a mind to call them children . . . They were both well under the legal limit of 16 years of age . . . Moreover, they looked as young as they were . . . But the Gerry Society was calmed down and so were the authorities . . . By the usual method, no doubt, and that method is a merger of the best prevaricating talents on the staff of the particular theatrical producer

THE LOOMIS SISTERS WERE A HIT in the "Scandals," and after a long Broadway run, they trouped with the show to the coast . . Their arrival in Hollywood coincided with a cycle in the motion picture industry's history when thumbs were being pressed forcibly down on musical epics . . . When one of these cycles whirls around, it is risking a career to be seen speaking to a songwriter . . . And, of course, there is no premium at these periods on the ability to sing and dance—which the Loomis "kids" possessed a-plenty, although they shone most brightly as singers.

DID WE MENTION THEY were very pretty? . . They were . . . They were the Frazee Sisters of the immediate pre-Roosevelt Era . . . They were just as "cute" as the charming young Frazees, and could sing perhaps a bit better . . . Maxine and Virginia were not feazed by Hollywood's neglect in throwing an ermine carpet at the porter's little ladder as they stepped off a Pullman . . . They had reason to be disappointed, because everyone in New York had told them they were "naturals" for the pictures . . . So they didn't get a screen contract . . . But the kids did all right . . . For five years they worked as much as they desired . . . And they accumulated a handy nest-egg.

IN JUNE OF '934 they were appearing at Loew's State theater in New York as featured principals in an act topped by a Broadway columnist . . . One of their songs was "There'll Be Some Changes Made" . . . Maxine remembers that, tearfully . . . The title was so prophetic . . . It was also an understatement . . . Calling what happened a "change" was comparable to calling a command to stop living an order to digress from the regular routine . . . Sister Virginia was stricken with a fatal infection . . . She died in August . . . These two "kids" had been inseparable . . . Maxine couldn't go on . . . She quit. She also brooded.

COMEDY ROLE NEXT FOR JEAN ARTHUR

By Louella O. Parsons

Jean Arthur

HOLLYWOOD, May 16—I am really intrigued with the title "The Devil and Miss Jones," described as a comedy, but a normal one with a tear and a spot of drama. It's from the pen of that brilliant young writer, Norman Krasna—and thereby hangs a story. Norman and Frank Ross have formed a producing company to be called the Frank Ross-Norman Krasna, Inc. Their very first, "The Devil and Miss Jones," will star Jean Arthur, no less, who in private life is Mrs. Frank Ross.

Companies have fought and bled to sign Jean but she is so delighted with "The Devil and Miss Jones" that she has promised Frank, who also manages her business, to star in his picture first. Jules Stein, head of the Music Corp. of America, who agents the two capable young men, has arranged an RKO release for them—so keep your eyes on Ross and Krasna—they will surprise you.

SUSAN HAYWARD

SNAFSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Joyce Mathews, who is in Hollywood, was at the Sphinx Club with Jimmie Ritz—but don't get excited! Joyce's bridegroom, Gonzales Gomez, at the same time was at the Stork Club in New York with Mrs. Jimmie—all prearranged; Eleanor Thompson, the Chicago heiress who has been visiting here, is leaving for home and Randy Scott couldn't be sadder; Sandy Cummings, really carrying the torch for Alice Faye, leaves for New York today to see her.

SUSAN HAYWARD and Peter Lind Hayes a new twosome at the preview of "Those Were the Days"; Pat Morison and Y. Frank Freeman, Jr., are a new duet; Helen Mack's secret and real heart beat is Pat Weaver, New York advertising genius; Townsend Netcher has eyes only for Ann St. George Thompson former Chicago girl, these days; Anita Louise and Buddy Adler will only have a three-day honeymoon since Anita is due back in town Tuesday; Mrs. Carey Wilson (Carmelita Geraghty) hosted a luncheon shower today for Anita, much feted since her engagement was announced

THE DARRYL ZANUCKS have invited a few friends to meet the Winthrop Aldriches on Friday. He is head of the Chase National Bank; Sid Silvers has been buying supper these last few nights for Janet Chambers, one of the N. T. G. beauties; Alex Korda cables that he has been in Lisbon, Spain, for two days without any chance, so far, of getting to London; many reservations for "Lillian Russell." Norma Shearer, as usual, with George Raft, Sonja Henie and Dan Topping. The Darryl Zanucks, Elsa Maxwell, Constance Bennett and Philip Ainley and the Mervyn Leroys in another party; as soon as Bing Crosby can tear himself away from Delmar he and Dixie and the Lin Howards will go to South America.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

IT WAS a beautiful day and we were in the mood to appreciate it. We had come far and were paddling across Russell lake in Canada, when we saw at a distance the most fantastic and "spooky" waterfall. It seems to drop from nowhere right into the lake.

We were so attracted by this phenomenon that we changed our course and decided to camp there.

Ed didn't like the idea, saying no good could come of it, but it was such an ideal place to hunt and fish that he became most enthusastic about the change.

EARLY next morning we found there was a lake above the falls, and the adventurous spirit got the best of us. We carried our canoe around the falls and very excitedly paddled about the shore wondering what would happen. Wild animals of all kinds ran for cover as we passed, making the only noise one could hear.

Finding the inlet, we paddled up some distance, feeling the loneliness of the big woods more and more.

Very soon we came to an old landing where we tied our canoe; then, walking up an old logging road, we came quite suddenly to an old camp, with the roof falling in and the door unlocked.

Cautiously we entered, and, much to our surprise, found hundreds of fur pelts hanging on wires, nearly filling the room. Most all of them in good condition and worth several thousand dollars.

WHAT PLANS we made in the next few minutes! What wonderful things we thought we'd do. Then, walking toward the bunk, we stopped, gasping in amazement!

Before us were the remains of an old man. Clutched in one hand was his last message.

"Please, Mr. Finder, notify Mrs. Dan MacLay, Fort Francis, Canada . . . I am going to my happy hunting ground . . . Good-by, Your Old Dan."

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

THERE'S an old trail on the ranch. It runs from the oak grove up and over the ridge to the dead pine—down to the gulley where the white violets bloom—and the gold flecks gleam in every spring freshet around the ledge where the last old Indian woman lies buried beside the wreck of her camp.

And then up again to the crumbling stone house that Spanish Pete built long before '49, and where they found him happily dead at last . . . his dark face smiling at the little, faded Madonna who stood in a niche in the wall . . . his gnarled fingers twisted in a rosary.

NOBODY knows who cut the first blaze, or why. Some Indian buck hunting the deer that still nibble our garden patch . . . or perhaps a squaw gathering acorns. Then, later, miners following a prospect—trappers and traders struggling through to camp, marking their passage with deep, swift cuts in pine, oak and alder.

Dead, gone and forgotten now, all of them—and the scars of their hatchets or tomahawks nearly covered by the growing bark. Yet, for those who can trace them, there's a marvel of meaning in those fading scars.

IT'S MY BIRTHDAY today I am 56. You might think there's scant bond between an old wood trail and a busy modern woman's life—but you'd think wrong. For the heart has its blazes as well as those scarred tree trunks. And it takes many a year before you can see where they're all leading.

Scars. Strokes driven deep by the cutting blade of life. Those months of pain. The day Dad died. That twilight when I turned my back upon my home. The deadening dreariness of those years in the mine. Hunger and rags. That one, brief glimpse of joy. And then . . . a boy's still face that did not answer when I called.

Scars. Blazes on your heart and mine that all the growing years cannot erase.

They blazed a trail, those cutting strokes of life . . . they cleared a way I, elsewhere, never would have found

We trace life's meaning by our buried scars.

Gala 'Lillian Russell' Premiere

All Pittsburgh Enjoys Festivities

By PEGGY DOYLE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 16 – Lillian Russell, most beautiful woman of her or any other day in the opinion of the old guard, and Alice Faye, 20th Century-Fox studios miniature recreation of the celebrated charmer, combined to push back the calendar 40 years for a houseful of local and visiting firemen assembled in the Alvin Theater last night.

The occasion—highspot in an eventful two-day celebration that has cost the Harris Amusement Company and 20th Century-Fox more than $20,000—was the world premiere of Miss Faye's newest film, "Lillian Russell."

Local, social and political prominents as well as more than 50 Eastern motion picture critics, who had been guests at the $100-a-plate dinner in the William Penn Hotel's urban room the night before, attended the premiere.

So, too, did the 110-pound Miss Faye, who had to be padded to properly approximate the lush curves of the loast of the gay nineties, and Edward Arnold, who played the "Diamond Jim" Brady role in the picture at his own generous weight, his secret, by the way.

Miss Faye wore a hooded black chiffon dinner-dress and diamond and pigeon-blood ruby necklace and bracelet, duplicating jewels "Diamond Jim" Brady had presented to Miss Russell.

Earlier in the day, a record breaking traffic-stopping crowd of 600,000, including thousands of Pittsburgh school children who were enjoying a half-holiday as part of the "Lillian Russell" celebration, mobbed City Hall to await the arrival of Miss Faye and Arnold, who were to be made honorary mayor of the city and honorary director of public safety for the day, respectively, in the mayor's office.

These ceremonies were followed by a city-wide civic parade, arranged in tribute to the memory of Miss Russell, whose marriage to the late Alexander K. Moore, newspaper publisher and one-time ambassador to Spain, brought her here where she became one of the city's most beloved citizens.

In the afternoon, the visiting newspaper representatives toured the Irvin Steel Mills, newest and finest electrically operated steel mill in America. An informal dinner at the William Penn Hotel preceded the premiere.

The town's still talking about Tuesday night's $100-a-plate diner which had been prepared under the supervision of the famed restaurateur of the days when dining was an art and wining virtualy a ceremonial rite, M. Jacques Bustanoby.

It was at Bustanoby's Cafe Des Beaux Arts and Domino Room, names now legendary in New York's night life annals, that the most glittering personages of the day dined, wined and made merry.

The other night's lavish banquet, the entire proceeds of which will be given to the Variety Club's fund for Camp O'Connell, a project designed to benefit under-privileged Pittsburgh children—was inspired by a dinner M. Bustanoby once gave for "Diamond Jim" Brady, Lillian Russell, Florenz Ziegfeld and Anna Held costing $100 a plate.

The major expense in those days, he points out, was the table decorations including rare orchids that were transported from far-flung places at great cost.

Confidentially, M. Bustanoby whispers, the recent widely-publicized dinner did not average more than $15 a head, the wines being the chief item. The wines? Amontillado Sherry.

It is to be hoped that M. Bustanoby has not heard of the subsequent part of the program, a visit to the Duquesne Brewery during which some of the less discriminating banqueteers went to work on colossal snacks of headcheese, potato salad, hot-dogs and countless seidels of beer.

DOROTHY LAMOUR (of sarong fame and now the "lava lava") and Robert Preston are co-starred in "Typhoon," technicolor production opening today at the Metropolitan. There's plenty of action and thrills in this South Seas epic.

JACK BENNY HIT AT PARA-FENWAY

Radio Stars In Screen Riot

Jack Benny, whose Western yen livened many of his radio programs, goes West in a fast and funny way in "Buck Benny Rides Again," which moved to the Paramount and Fenway screens today.

Like his earlier "Man About Town," radio technique and delivery have been utilized in "Buck Benny Rides Again," which opens with Don Wilson appearing in front of the titles and announcing in radio m. c. fashion.

Most of Benny's radio troupe appear in the cast, not the least of which is Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, who all but steals the picture. Others are Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day, Carmichael, the polar bear.

Ellen Drew plays Benny's romantic interest. Teamed with her as a sister singing trio are Virginia Dale and Lillian Cornell.

On the same bill is "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise," one of the most baffling murder mysteries ever encountered by the celebrated sleuth, featuring Sidney Toler, Marjorie Weaver and Lionel Atwill.

IT'S LOVE—Jack Benny finds Ellen Drew is the girl of his dreams in "Buck Benny Rides Again," which opened today at the Paramount and Fenway. Eddie "Rochester" Anderson almost steals the acting honors from Boss Benny.

'Grapes of Wrath' At Bowdoin Saturday

"Grapes of Wrath," film version of John Steinbeck's best seller, comes to the Bowdoin Square Theater Saturday for a four-day run.

Companion feature is "Son of the Navy," starring James Dunn and Jean Parker.

So. American Dances Feature Program

A decidedly new feature in Boston's entertainment world is the Latin dances of the rhumba-conga troupe, a feature at Monte Proser's The Beachcombers, opposite the Common on Boylston st.

Lola and Andre, Anita and Paco, Galo and Calvano are the names of the talented individuals teaching Boston to trip the light fantastic in the South American way. All natives of Cuba and South American, the troupe was starred in the Cuban Village of the world's fair before making their appearance at this new South Seas haven.

MRS. HUGH TATLOCK, wife of a young Boston physician, has been gaining considerable fame as a sculptress through her prize winnings at Junior League exhibitions, and now we hear that she is having a joint exhibit with Edna Hibel, painter, at the Vose Galleries . . .

Just last month, Mrs. Tatlock, who signs her works Anne F. Tatlock, won first prize in aculpture at the League's annual members' show with her chiseled Belgian Mare and Foal . . . Daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Fisher of Weston, and granddaughter of the late Gen. Charles J. Paine, owner of the famous cup defenders, Puritan, Mayflower and Volunteer, she has a distinguished New England ancestry and many prominent Weston residents are serving as patrons and patronesses for the exhibit . . .

A private view and tea will be given Monday to mark the opening of the show and among the guests will be Mrs. George R Agassiz, Mr. and Mrs. F. Douglas Cochrane, Mr. and Mrs. J. Templeman Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton H. Dickson, 3d, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Edgell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Copley Greene, Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, Mrs. Henry M. Channing, Mrs. Roger S. Notes From a Society Editor's Cuff

DEBS OF THE PAST WINTER are not relinquishing their place in society's spotlight to their younger sisters without a fanfare of parties, judging by the busy days ahead for debs of 1939-40 . . . Saturday evening, Stuart Montgomery is giving a dance at his home in Medfield in honor of Margaret Goodhue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue of Beacon st. . . .

Another gay debutante party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Robinson of Milton in honor of Mrs. Robinson's cousin, Justine Hooper . . . This will be a small informal dance in the Robinsons' barn, Memorial Day eve . . . The honored deb is the Roger F. Hoopers' daughter . . .

Don't be surprised if the postman brings you in the very near future a little pink or blue edged note from the junior Melvin M. Johnsons of Brookline . . . Mrs. Johnson is the former Virginia Rice, who has won many laurels in local and national tennis competition . . . Her erstwhile doubles partner, Kay Winthrop, is playing in the Massachusetts State women's tournament on The Country Club course this week . . .

Married on Sister's Anniversary

LUCILE SWIFT, who became the bride of DeForest Paine Davis with considerable lack of fuss and feathers Monday afternoon, chose to be married on May 13 because that is the date of her sister Eleanor's wedding anniversary . . . The two sisters, who have always been very companionable, thought it would be fun to celebrate their anniversaries the same day . . .

The wedding was a quiet family affair at the Commonwealth ave. residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift . . . After the knot was tied and toasts were proposed to the happy couple, the newlyweds left by plane for New York . . . They will return here for a visit next week before leaving to make their home in Chicago . . .

The tall, dark-haired bride, winner of a "prettiest girl on the North Shore" contest two summers ago, is noted for her chic as well as her beauty, and chose for her wedding costume a dress and long coat of pale blue crepe with a matching hat and corsage of white orchids with ruby throats . . .

Bridegroom's Family Among Guests

MR. SWIFT gave his daughter in marriage and owing to the simplicity of the wedding there were no attendants . . . Guests included the bride's brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lowell Reeve (Eleanor Swift) of Cambridge and Mr. and Mrs. Erret Van Nice (Ruth Swift) of Chicago, George Swift, Jr., Mrs. Percy B. Paine of Chicago, mother of the bridegroom, and his brothers and sister, John, Percy and Betty Davis, all of Chicago . . .

Lucile will be greatly missed in Boston where she has served on a number of prominent charity boards . . . She has been taking lessons in aviation this spring and served on the committee for the recent Aviation Ball . . .

Dr. Boris Berestneff of Wellesley has gathered together a group of enthusiastic amateur entertainers who will sing, dance and play the balalaika. Ambrosia For Dessert

By MARTHA LEE

Among first families in the dessert world, that colorful and fruity melange, ambrosia, has one of the longest pedigrees.

Originally, this simple fruit dessert spoke with a decided Southern accent—a familiar family favorite everywhere south of the Mason and Dixon line. Today it is equally popular north and south, east and west.

Oranges, fresh pineapple, shredded cocoanut, powdered sugar and a sprinkling of Madeira wine — these are the exotic ingredients of ambrosia. And whereas the fruits and fine dessert wine which combine to make this dessert were once in the luxury class in most places, today they are familiar items on tables all over the country.

Thin slices of orange, wedges of pineapple, one-fourth cup of shredded cocoanut, a small amount of powdered sugar and about four tablespoons of Madeira are all that is required for this ambrosial dessert treat. The oranges and pineapple slices are dusted with sugar, and piled in alternate layers on a serving plate — sprinkled with Madeira and topped with shredded cocoanut. Small cakes or plain cookies are frequently served with the fruit dessert.

AMBROSIA

6 oranges (peeled and sliced fine)
2 cup powdered sugar
1 pineapple (cut in pieces)
1½ cups Madeira wine
1 cup shredded cocoanut

Dust the slices of orange and the wedges of pineapple with powdered sugar and arrange orange and pineapple on dessert plates in alternate layers. Sprinkle three tablespoons of shredded cocoanut. Makes eight servings.

SMALL CAKES

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
⅜ tsp. salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
8 egg yolks, well beaten
⅓ cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, add sugar slowly and cream until fluffy. Stir in well-beaten egg yolks. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, stirring well after each addition. Add vanilla extract. Bake in small greased muffin pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool and frost, if desired. Makes two dozen small cakes.

REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

2 cups sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup shortening
1¾ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup chopped nut meats
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream shortening, add sugar slowly, and cream until fluffy. Stir in well beaten egg, nut meats, and vanilla extract. Add sifted dry ingredients. Shape into rolls 1½ inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator. When hard enough to cut, slice very thin. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) about 10 minutes. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

MADEIRA WINE blends beautifully with all sorts of fruit flavors, and it is nowhere more at home than on a dessert plate of mingled fresh fruits.

Courtesy Tip

When your partner thanks you for a dance don't say "you're welcome." That's not a very bright answer, for it doesn't say what you should say—that you, too, have enjoyed the dance.—MRS. BEECKMAN.

Manners

School Dance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If I take a girl friend to a formal high school dance, do I have to stay with her all evening, or would it be impolite if she danced with someone else, for me to dance with another girl? BOB.

The girl whom you are taking won't expect to dance every dance with you, and you won't expect her to. If she is a stranger, see to it that she has partners. Introduce other boys to her so that she will have plenty of partners

She will, of course, expect to have the first and last dances with you, the dances before and after supper. But the other dances—or at least most of them—should be shared with other partners.

Pet Shop

By Olga L. Rosmanith

THE alarm rang and Mr. Stitch flung back the covers and jumped out of bed. Immediately he felt sick and he had to sit down gasping for breath while his heart leaped about. When he was able, he called his daughter. Thin and middle-aged, looking her worst in a cheap red wrapper, she came running.

"Listen, Vicki, get me the usual. The tea very hot and nearly half brandy. Then you go down and feed the animals."

"Oh dear, you're ill again. I ought to get the doctor."

"Don't want him until I can pay for him. Besides I'm not going to last very long. My time's up. What could he do for me?"

"What's he for, father? If only we could sell the monkey."

Mr. Stitch shut his eyes and winced. "We aren't in the right place to sell a monkey. Monkeys are luxuries."

The Pet Shop was not one of those swank establishments with pedigree pups and royal cats cavorting in the windows in clean straw making a free show for the passers-by. It was a dingy shop in a low rent location with cheap stock like white mice and baby rabbits and swarming aquariums. All the same it got plenty of attention. It was near a school and the street was a short cut from an expensive residential suburb to the riverside gardens. Well dressed children went through it with their uniformed nurses. There was excellent activity in the goldfish, miniature tortoise and white mouse business. Small transactions under a dollar.

Mr. Stitch had lived so long with small animals that he had acquired some of their habits. He liked to be left alone in the dark when he felt ill and he was up and doing the moment he rallied. He went downstairs at 11 and released the daughter to go on her errands and do the housework.

Ulysses, the marmoset, gave a cry of joy and rattled madly at his cage clinging to the wires with absurd little black fingers. Mr. Stitch let him out, looked at the thermometer and decided the shop was warm enough for him to peel off the monkey's knitted sleeping sweater and went about his routine with the little animal on his shoulder.

A WHITE MOUSE

At noon two men came in in opera hats, tails and white ties, and rather the worse for the previous evening. They were giggling together like silly school boys, and one said, "Have you got a white mouse, Mister?"

Some silly trick, thought Mr. Stitch, for which I do not sell a defenseless live animal. "I have some as you see," he said politely, "but all are sold and will go away when the messenger comes to take them."

The other man was staring at the tiny money on the old man's shoulder. He nudged his companion. "Is it real, or am I seeing things?"

The first man whooped with joy.

The Cast of Characters in "Pet Shop"

MR. STITCH, who owns a pet shop

ULYSSES, a pet monkey with which Mr. Stitch dislikes to part.

A LITTLE BOY who wants something different in the way of playthings.

"That would be priceless. Name your price, Mister. We'll take it."

"The monkey is not for sale," said Mr. Stitch, a little less politely.

"Hey, what kind of a shop is this with nothing for sale! Wrap it up and I'll give you ten dollars."

They ran their offer up to fifty dollars and Mr. Stitch was completely worn out by the time he got rid of them. He was sitting at the counter with his head on his arms when Vicki got back from her shopping. The monkey's liquid eyes had all the sorrow of the world in them.

"You ought to go right back to bed father."

"I'm all right. A little tired. All I need is peace, woman."

She gave an exasperated sigh. "If only we could sell that useless monkey. You need money so badly and you use it to buy unsaleable stock from stranded sailors. Remember that awful parrot?"

"Peace—peace." begged Mr. Stitch.

It began to rain, so the day was quiet. No processions of clamoring children. Mr. Stitch thought the next attack might be the last. But it did not bother him. He only worried because Ulysses would fret and he didn't know where to find a home for him.

A BIRTHDAY

The nurse and the small boy in raincoats came in at tea time. The nurse was almost in a temper and the boy had eyes like Ulysses. Mr. Stitch liked the look of the boy. He said, "Well, my little man, what can I do for you?"

The nurse answered. "It's his birthday. He has more toys than you can shake a stick at, but he won't look at them. He says he wants something alive to play with."

"He's got sense at that. Toys won't come when you call. What about a white mouse? Or maybe a tabby kitten?"

But the boy was watching Ulysses playing with the tassel on the old man's cap. "No, I want the monkey."

The rain had turned the air damp and Ulysses was wearing his best blue jumper. His face, no bigger than a silver dollar, looked like a sad brown baby's. "He's cute all right," said the nurse, "but monkeys are expensive. You've only got $5."

The boy said obstinately. "I won't have anything but the monkey."

Mr. Stitch smiled genially. "What's your name? How old are you?"

"Tony. And I'm seven today. What's the monkey's name?"

"Ulysses."

"Oh, I know. After President Grant."

"No, Tony. After a man who was also a great wanderer and travelled far from home."

"He won't travel any more. Can we take him now?"

Mr. Stitch knew Ulysses. He would save further argument. He took the monkey from his shoulder and held him out to the boy. "You can't have him, but you may hold him, Tony."

Mr. Stitch was astounded. Tony took the monkey in gentle but firm hands exactly the way he should be held and in a moment soothed him. The nervous little creature was actually quiet in the hands of a stranger. Ulysses gave Mr. Stitch but one anxious glance and then looked up at the boy with confident wonder. His little black hands clutched the stranger's fingers

"I wish I could have him," said the child. "Then I wouldn't be lonely."

Ulysses hopped on to Tony's shoulder, looked in his ear and began to examine his thick fair hair. He tried to pull out a bright little tuft that he liked.

"Tony," said Mr. Stitch marveling, "this isn't the first time you held a monkey?"

"Yes, it is. But when we lived in the country I had a little dog and when we were alone he used to talk to me."

"That's a great big fib," said the nurse. "Do you want to grow up a person that every one knows is a fibber?"

Another like Vicki, thought Mr. Stitch. He said, "That's no fib, young woman. Ulysses talks to me when I'm alone with him, and if you would creep into the shop in the dead of night you would hear them all talking."

The nurse's eyes had Vicki's might-as-well-humor him look in them, but the boy's eyes grew wide with happiness. "Would Ulysses talk to me if I were alone with him?"

"Yes, if you kept him warm and fed him right and never let the other children handle him." Mr. Stitch came round the corner of the counter and took one of Ulysses' tiny human-looking paws: "You see how small he is. Yet he can feel just like you. And how frail he is. Just like a piece of mother's best china. He gets hungry and he gets cold and if you neglect him he feels lonely. It's a great responsibility taking care of such an animal."

"I'll say this for Tony," said the nurse. "He's just the one to do it. Never saw a child so gentle with a living thing. Let's look at the kittens. We haven't the money for the monkey."

"ALL INCLUDED

Ulysses had had a busy day leaping round the top shelves, peering into the boxes, trying to catch the points of light on the goldfish globes and balancing on the old man's shoulder. Tony had tender hands and a clean, warm smell. He was burrowing into the boy's neck to sleep. Mr. Stitch felt a pang. All the same, he thought, I can't take him with me.

He said briskly, "How do you know, Madam? I haven't mentioned money?"

Then he felt so queer that he got Ulysses' favorite dish and three other sweaters and found a box for them. He wrote out instructions for the monkey's food and care in his old trembly hand. "And the cage, too," he said. "He had better have the cage he knows, and he won't feel strange at night." He gave the nurse a severe look to stop a protest. "It's all included."

The woman and the radiant child and the bulky parcel containing Ulysses in his cage went off in a taxi.

Mr. Stitch locked up the shop, covered the canaries, turned out the lights and went very slowly upstairs to the bright, warm living room. Vicki said—"I've got some nice hot cakes for your tea. You're early, father."

"Yes. I've locked up. It's wet and likely nothing doing. Besides I've sold the monkey."

The thin, faded woman went red with surprise. "You have! And me suspecting you wouldn't sell it because you'd got crazy about it, giving it a name and everything. I hope you got a lot of money."

"All I could get, Vicki. Just $5.

THE END.

"I wish I could have him," said the child. "Then I wouldn't be lonely."

There's a thrilling story on this page tomorrow. The title is "Wanted." Don't miss it.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

alibis . . . We had dined with little Maxine and Ethel Barrymore Colt the previous night, and had asked, at the time, about the well-being of the other Loomis "kid" . . . In a buzz of conversation, the question must have been lost . . . We remember wondering at Maxine's solitary presence without the other little Loomis . . . But we didn't press it . . . They tell me that Maxine Loomis—the next day—cried her heart out when she read that note . . . But the heartbreak of a talented young singer would not warrant a five-hundred attempt to make amends for the mistake . . . No, we think it's a story.

DOUBTLESS THERE are many others who missed reading in the newspapers or in one of the theatrical trade papers that Virginia Loomis had passed away . . . Many who were familiar with the work of the team, and who must have been puzzled by the sudden dropping out of the "profession" of such a promising pair of youngsters . . . Those who knew the Loomis "kids"—who knew them "when"—will find their imaginations roaming as lovely Maxine Loomis taps her tempos with her right foot, as she "delivers" such songs as "Heat Wave" and "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me" with that professional finish which separates the artist from the amateur . . . It is impossible to feel anything else but that this is Maxine starting on a number, and that Virginia will join her for the second chorus.

THE BIG MAJORITY of the public will not be haunted by any such mental meanderings . . . They will enjoy a charming young girl as she sings, in perfect rhythm and a straight true voice, the "hot" songs of her repertory . . . They will applaud her again and again as happened last night, and ha. happened since Maxine opened "solo" for the first time in Boston since Virginia's death five years ago . . . They are applauding her without knowing the background of the story . . . Although Maxine's work stands by itself, it may make her audiences this much more appreciative

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Jimmy Durante and many of his mates of "Keep Off the Grass" has been invited by Manager Mickey Redstone to sup at the Mayfair tomorrow night . . . On two visits to the restaurant, The Schnozzle has taken the floor and obliged with a lengthy routine of songs, dances and chatter. The Mayfair's proprietor may be excused for some wishful hoping that The Nose will answer a request for bow with a song tomorrow midnight . . . But the party is sincerely a tribute and an expression of gratitude . . . The tall angular lad who must have been vaguely familiar to several ringsiders at the Latin Quarter, and who watched an excellent takeoff of the late Jack Donahue (in the revue based on Ziegfeld stars and songs) was Joe Donahue . . . He is working now in the same department of the Charlestown Navy Yard from which his big brother Jack went on to Broadway and national fame . . . But Joe was "up there," too . . . He was co-featured by Universal Pictures in the picture "Sonny," in the role his mourned brother created.

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1940

Lines of Appreciation For an Ex-Pickle Puss

IT MAY BE A LITTLE PREVIOUS TO TALK about the "appreciation day" being planned for Lefty Grove. It doesn't happen until June 8. Yet, accustomed to his dark velvet moods, his crusty contempt for personal popularity and his gruffness with journalists, out-of-town sports writers are marvelling at the new-born buoyancy of Ole Mose and his submissiveness to being interviewed. No longer, they say, does the Red Sox Hamlet sulk in lobby corners, nursing his grouch and gnawing unlit cigars. He doesn't smoke cigars any more! No more does he hole up, incommunicado in a hotel room and submerge in paper pulp magazines while his telephone rings unheeded. Now newsmen find him affable, quick to laugh his terrier's bark, fond of rough pranks and keeping the deep clefts of his cheeks in a parenthetical grin. So they speak of the "new Lefty," mellowed by 40 years!

AUSTEN LAKE

Pooh-pooh! The answer is simply that Lefty, winning, is happy and garrulous. The Red Sox are biffing in some runs. His teammates are performing miracles and saving potential hits! So the mountain-bred oddity feels kindly toward his fellow man. The world is full of sunshine! The birds warble sweetly! Life is abundant! The Gods of the game are good! For Lefty is a single-purposed gent whose moods follow his fortune and whose artistry sees nothing less than perfection.

Fundamentally Lefty has changed little since he staged his one-man rebellion in Chicago some years ago. Then he prowled the waterfront, stewing internally until the wee hours of the morning and vowing he would pitch no more until his mates promised to lead more industrious lives. He demanded that they strive as he was striving or he wouldn't strive at all.

Cannot Stomach Failure

IT WAS THE YEASTY FOAMING OF AN ARTISTIC soul which allows nothing for laziness and demands nothing short of utmost effort. And one recalls that spring, as the team mooched tolerantly north from southern training, Lefty had foamed up and scolded his playmates for lackadaisically losing the ball down their neckbands and going paralytic at the bat. He refused, he said, to carry eight able-bodied men around on his shoulders. So, as a lesson, he served up creampuff pitches for the rest of the trip which fattened the average of rival hitters and had his outfielders wearing their legs off down to the knees. It was his form of passive protest.

And then these same out-of-town writers, who are marvelling now at Lefty's sugary temper, were scandalizing him as a prima donna whose tantrums were giving Cronin the midnight sweats and upsetting Red Sox balance. Nothing could be further from the fact. For Lefty merely cannot stomach failure! He is a bitter-ender and a hard losing prototype of the vanishing breed of pre-war players like Johnny Evers, Rabbit Maranville, Bill Carrigan, Ty Cobb and the kindred horde who started grass fires from the friction of their feet.

Sedative for Suffering

ONLY RECENTLY JOHNNY EVERS WAS COMPLAINING that the young commercial-school type of athletes were paying out their energies with the frugal care that a store clerk measures off yard goods to the exact amount of the purchase price. And he said, "Give me a mediocre team of men who are hard losers and feel poisoned by failure and I'll lick a league of better teams who take defeat philosophically."

Up to last year the basic fault with the Red Sox was the thinning solution of tolerance which mixed with their mechanical skill. The result was malignant apathy! What the club needed was more irreconcilables of Lefty's stamp, who took defeat as a calamity and regarded to-

Austen Lake to Tell Canada's War Story

Austen Lake, ace columnist and feature writer of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser, is in Ottawa today to find out what Canada is doing to prepare for war.

Lake, a World War veteran, saw active service in France with the American army. He understands the feelings and the hopes of service men.

During his newspaper career, Lake has had an opportunity to watch the wheels of government turn. His articles from Canada will tell the real story of how the Dominion faces the war.

MAJESKI, SWIFT FOLLOW EARLEY, LAMANNA TRAIL

Pilot Casey Stengel struck up an attitude of great despair and mumbled something concerning what does a guy have to do to win one, as he looked gloomily out the window at N. L. Field and elected Lefty Joe Sullivan to do the pitching in the second and concluding game of the abbreviated series with the Chicago Cubs this afternoon.

DIZ IN HIS NEW UNIE—Once peerless Dizzy Dean, in new sleeveless uniforms Cubs have adopted. Diz would swap new garb in moment for his old fast one.

Casey was surveying the damage, now amounting to five straight defeats, most rankling of which was the loss to the Cubs yesterday by a 2-0 score. Seldom before this season have the Bees had better pitching. It so happened that the B's Nick Strincevich was outhurled by southpaw Larry French of the Cubs

FIFTH FOR FRENCH

French chalked up his fifth victory against two defeats, and his third shut-out of the campaign.

Strincevich was hurling the same brand, staying with French by allowing but two hits in eight frames, before an error ruffled his calm and paved the way for the Cubs' two unearned runs with two down.

French himself scored the winning run. He should have been retired for the third out when Max West ran a country mile for his foul fly and got his glove on it only to drop it. So French stayed up swinging and finally rolled a slow one at Rabbit Warstler. Wars-

BULLETIN

The Boston Bees pared their roster to 26 players today—one over the player limit—by the sale of Pitcher Bill Swift to the St. Paul Club of the American Ass'n and the release of Henry Majeski on option to Newark.

Majeski, a fine hitter, will play the outfield for Newark. He had been tried at both second and third by the Bees.

Previously Pitcher Tom Earley had been sent to the St. Paul club on option and Pitcher Bill Lamanna to the Bees Hartford farm in the Eastern League.

Bagby and Galehouse Wait Browns Opener

By JOE CASHMAN

ST. LOUIS, May 16—As our rollicking, pace-setting Red Sox open a three-game series with the revamped and rejuvenated Browns here today, the deadline for reducing big league squads to a maximum of 25 players had been passed. But all clubs, save the Yankees, still have a month more to engage in inter or intra-league swapping, buying or selling.

The Yanks, as defending champions, are prohibited by a new American League rule from acquiring a player from any other club in the loop, except via the waiver route.

There's nobody on the Sox who is on the auction block. Neither is Manager Joe Cronin, at the moment, seeking to acquire talent from any rival nor does he intend to take the initiative in opening negotiations in the next four weeks.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS

This doesn't mean that the present lofty position of his club has given Boss Joe the idea that the Sox couldn't be improved, and that he wouldn't buy or trade.

He'll keep his eyes and ears open until June 15, and if offered a chance to do anything in the bartering line, which in his opinion would bolster the Fenway Flock, he'll jump at it.

The odds, frankly, are against the Hose acquiring any worthwhile talent in the short time remaining. For Sox regulars such as Foxx,

Horses Here!

Suffolk Stalls Fill

The stable enclosure at Suffolk Downs began to look like Times sq. this morning with a dozen new strings of horses from Pimlico, Jamaica, Kentucky and Narragansett on the grounds and more carloads arriving almost every hour.

Among the new occupants are 36 horses from the J. W. Y. Martin stable, under the direction of Trainer F. A. Bonsal, Jr.; Mrs. F. B. Ponce's six thoroughbreds from Pimlico; and the stables of F. Andolino, O. L. Foster, Mrs. F. Wyse, Frank Walker, and C. H. Trotter.

ADAMS SHIPS SIX

Weston Adams has shipped six horses from Narragansett to the East Boston track. Trainer Johnny Donovan informed the track officials that he will unload ten Max Hirsch horses today. Others due to arrive today are Glen Riddle Farms, Wheatley Stables, A. E. Webber and another carload of 13 horses from the Hal Price Headley farm in Kentucky.

The Ponce horses at the Downs are headed by Sketch Book, a flashy five-year-old mare that defeated Flying Lee and the well-regarded Charlotte Girl in the Stafford Handicap at Pimlico last Friday. On his way to Suffolk, F. A. Bonsal, the Martin trainer, dropped Battle Jack off at Narragansett.

POINTS FOR MASS. 'CAP

The star Martin stake horse will race there Saturday afternoon before continuing his journey to East Boston. Bonsal is preparing Battle Jack for the Tomasello Memorial on May 30 and the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap.

Lucas Dupps, the Martin jockey who rode Battle Jack to two prosperous stake victories during the Pimlico meeting, visited his friends at Suffolk Downs yesterday. Dupps did very well indeed at Maryland races this spring, booting home 18 winners.

Among the other Martin horses sniffing the salt air at the Downs today were Slow Motion, a big five-year-old gelding that will run in several stake races during the long spring and summer meeting; Abrasion, a three-year-old nominated for the $5000 Commonwealth Handicap next Saturday, Eveopener and Punchdrunk, a couple of promising two-year-old fillies.

LOST SHOE, FINISHED THIRD

Leroy King, owner of King Farms and the sensational two-year-old Double Call, was also inspecting his stable at the Downs this morning. The King horses are well known throughout the South and Middle West but this is the first time that the Tennessee breeder has brought his stock to New England.

King shipped his horses here from Pimlico where Double Call was badly injured in a race last Saturday. Another horse nipped a deep gash in the two-year-old's hind foot, tearing the shoe completely off.

"Even with three shoes, Double Call stayed in the battle and finished third," King said. "That colt has barrels of courage."

Many horsemen expect Double Call to be the two-year-old champion of 1940. The colt established a new world record for the half-mile on an oval track at Tropical Park this winter, covering the distance in 46 seconds.

BEES SEND EARLEY TO ST. PAUL

tler bobbled the ball and it rolled away from him as French reached. Hack's triple and Herman's single produced the two tallies.

This was the sad downfall of Strincevich who nevertheless established himself as the current ace of the staff despite the slim beating.

TONY'S KNEE INFECTED

Little blame was placed on Warstler for the veteran set up two lightning double plays previously only to boot one of the kind he generally gobbles up. Warstler was rushed into the ball game without warning when Tony Cuccinello was found to have a slight infection on the right knee.

Cuccinello had it lanced yesterday morning by Dr. Eddie O'Brien and is due back this afternoon. If Tony doesn't make it, Warstler will continue at second with Sebby Sisti on third.

HARTNETT TO CATCH

Gabby Hartnett announced that General Bill Lee would be the Cubs pitcher and that he himself would do the catching, making the second start of the season for the Cubs' pilot behind the plate.

Eddie Miller was credited with a hit when he beat out a bunt and kept on to third when French threw wild to first. The other bingle had a touch of authority to it, being a sharp slap over second by Chet Ross.

ROSS CUTS RUN DOWN

Ross continues to shine. Along with contributing the lone genuine hit against French he displayed a rifle throwing arm in the ninth cutting down Rip Russell at the plate in the ninth. Russell tried to score from second on Todd's bingle to left.

Ross is definitely up to stay. Several others are on their way out.

Tom Earley of Roxbury hopped the train for St. Paul today, to join the American Association team there. Frank Lamanna left for the Bees' farm at Hartford. Both are right-handed pitchers and released on option.

EARLEY TO ST. PAUL

Stengel figures Earley is going to make the grade and wants him to have a whirl in AA ball before bringing him up again. The Roxbury boy won a game early in the season but has been of little use since.

Three other Bees were assigned to new posts before midnight last night but Bees officials have not yet announced their names or destinations.

Bagby, Galehouse Ready

Williams. Doerr, Tabor, et al, aren't for sale at any price, and few of the Boston bench warmers would bring much on the trading mart.

But stranger things have happened.

REMEMBER FINNEY DEAL!

The present success of the Sox can be traced to no small measure to the brilliant all-around play of Lou Finney.

Just a year ago, the Sox star right fielder and leading hitter was a bench-warmer with the A's. He was offered for sale and Tom Yawkey picked him up for slightly more than the waiver price of $7500, or one-tenth what he paid for Dom DiMaggio, who now sits on the bench watching Lou hold down the berth he (Dom) was slated to occupy.

Another bargain like Finney is too much to hope for, but you can bet that Joe Cronin will do nothing to prevent lightning striking again.

Cronin, incidentally, was still undecided as to who to pitch against the Browns today when he came down for breakfast.

TWO HURLERS READY

The mid-week postponement in Chicago, due to rain and cold weather, leaves him with two hurlers primed to face Fred Haney's henchmen: Jim Bagby, who was to have worked yesterday, and Denny Galehouse, originaly scheduled to twirl today.

The skipper feels either is capable of turning back the Browns. It's not this game he's thinking about or either of the remaining two contests here.

He's looking ahead to the following two series with the third place Tigers and second-place Indians. He's going to plan on his pitchers for the games in these cities and work backward to decide on today's starter.

The last time a Sox pitcher went the route in a game was when Galehouse turned the trick against these same Browns in Boston a week ago Sunday. From two to four Fenway flingers have seen service in every tilt since that time.

It would simplify Cronin's pitching problem no end if his hill choice could go the route in two or three of the games here.

If this doesn't happen, the pilot will sure have pitching worries entering Detroit and Cleveland.

But while the boys hit, the future will continue to look bright.

The Sox aren't going to win any pennant on pitching.

They'll have to blast their way through, if they're to make it.

VET'S WORK SPICES BIZARRE CAMPAIGN

By PAT ROBINSON

This young baseball season already has produced more than its share of surprises in the standing of the clubs with the world champion Yankees in the cellar and the highly-touted Cardinals not far away from the basement.

The season also has been productive of some amazingly fine pitching and some that was amazing only for its ineptitude. We also have seen some great home run hitting and some of the sloppiest fielding noted in several years.

We already have had two no-hit performances and any number of games in which a pitcher gave no more than one, two or three hits.

At the same time we have seen Johnny Mize hit nine homers which puts him ahead of Babe Ruth's pace in his record year and two others, Jimmy Foxx and Hal Trosky, only a step away with eight.

Larry French, the Cubs' veteran lefthander, who seems to have found a private fountain of youth, held the Bees to two hits yesterday for a 2-0 shutout. That was Larry's fifth victory.

There were seven errors in that game and a total of 16 boots in the four National League games. In fact, the Giants were the only ones to turn in an errorless performance, while four Pirate miscues helped old Carl Hubbell down the Bucs, 5 to 2.

The Reds moved back into first place in their see-saw battle with the Dodgers by piling into Whitlow Wyatt for all their runs in the first inning while young Gene Thompson spread five hits for a 5-2 decision.

The Cardinals trotted out five more pitchers, which is about their average per game, but Higbe outpitched all of them as the Phillies rung up another, 6 to 3.

Thomas GROWS HAIR

A SERIOUS local scalp condition known as "alopecia areata" was causing baldness to spread rapidly over James Powell's scalp. He consulted a Thomas scalp specialist who soon checked Mr. Powell's abnormal hair loss and within twelve weeks had new hair growing on the bald spots.

Any local scalp disorder is serious and will cause baldness unless promptly checked. Dandruff and scalp itch are danger signals, warning you that you must take immediate steps to avoid further hair loss. Do as James Powell (and a quarter-million other men) did—consult a Thomas specialist. He'll show you how Thomas treatment can end your dandruff, stop scalp itch, and promote natural hair growth for you. Come in today for a free scalp examination.

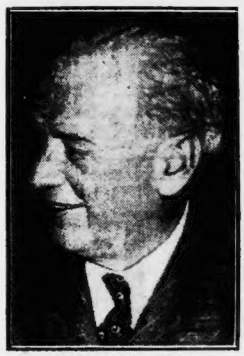
CALL CAPITOL 0667

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

RACING COMMISSIONER William H. Cane of New Jersey has made a hit with horsemen by his insistence that tracks under his supervision build bungalows for stable attendants, and also have a suitable recreation room for the horsemen.

Five or six times a year one reads about horses being burned to death as a result of stable fires. These fires are usually the result of a cigarette being tossed into a stall by a stable hand. Grooms have often fallen asleep while smoking in an empty stall. A fire has frequently resulted in which the unfortunate groom and valuable horses have lost their lives.



WILLIAM F. CANE

Commissioner Cane is a practical racing man. He has raced harness horses for years, and has been interested in the Goshen, N. Y., track where the famous Hambletonian classic is held.

"We must recognize conditions as they exist and not as we would like to have them," said Cane. "This is why I believe in a recreation room at each New Jersey track. The men who put on the show should have some place where they can go for amusement at night. If we don't give it to them at the track, they will get it some place else. I don't want to have any gin-soaked grooms returning to our New Jersey tracks at night.

"I believe that horsemen will appreciate sleeping in sanitary bungalows rather than in spare stalls. I have always felt that enough attention was not given to the men who have the poorer jobs at the tracks. They often don't receive as much consideration as a $1000 plater."

The three New Jersey tracks will be the latest thing in architectural design and each will cost between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

"In the construction of our tracks," said Commissioner Cane, "we are going to try to utilize the waste space under the grandstand. We may build spacious jockey rooms in the rear part of the grandstand, with a runway going down to the paddock."

COMMISSIONER CANE told Chairman Charles F. Connors of the Massachusetts Racing Commission that he came here to confer with him as he thought the local racing rules and Commission setup was the best in the country.

"Massachusetts has had racing without scandal because the sport was properly organized and directed under the supervision of Chairman Connors," said Cane. "I believe that if New Jersey can do as well as Massachusetts has done that we will not have any worries about the future."

Cane stated that there would not be any racing in New Jersey until 1941. The Ne wJersey commissioner expressed interest in this writer's account of the Belmont opening.

"I think your article hit the nail right on the head," said Commissioner Cane. "The chutes, mile and a half track, poor system of posting prices and the distances from the races at Belmont make conditions unsatisfactory. I believe in the one mile tracks such as you have in New England. New Jersey will have one mile tracks.

"I also think there should be more long races. People like to watch races of one mile and upwards. There are too many six furlong sprint races, and even shorter sprints.

"If a horse gets into trouble in a sprint race, he usually loses. In a long race, a horse can get into trouble in the early part of a race, and still come on to win. The long races give the public a better show, and also furnishes greater protection for its money."

While in Boston, Cane visited with Paul Bowser.

"Bowser and I have raced Grand Circuit horses for years," said Cane. "Paul is one of the finest sportsmen in the country, and an excellent promoter. When he visits Goshen, I turn my track over to him, and give him my own apartment which has a Chinese cook as an extra."

Bowser is a director of the Grand Circuit meeting that will be held at Narragansett Park in August.

STYLISH WELCH FIGHTS KING IN ARGONNE RING FEATURE

By JACK CONWAY

RATAPLAN — Ralph Zanelli, Providence welter, tunes up for title bout with Henry Armstrong at Buckley's gym. Bout will be staged at Garden on May 24.

Coly Welch, fistic pride of Portland, Me., and Howell King, colored middleweight from Springfield, will toss leather in a 10-round bout at Eddie Mack's Argonne A. A. at Mechanics Building tonight.

The betting is even on the contest. While Welch won a duke over King at Portland, the latter recently was awarded a decision over Henry Chmielewski, New England middleweight champion.

King is a graduate of the Golden Glove tournament of Detroit. He located at Springfield, and has been fighting with success in New England. King is 21 years old, has engaged in 42 bouts, and has lost only four decisions.

This writer saw King box Chmielewski twice in Worcester. The colored middleweight is better than the average boxer in the matter of skill, while he packs a powerful left hook.

"I think I will beat Welch," King told me today. "I would then like to meet Henry Chmielewski or Ceferino Garcia."

Welch has been brought along carefully by Chick Hayes, former featherweight star. Coly hasn't been overmatched at any time, and has steadily improved in his boxing.

Welch is a stylist, and moves forward gracefully. He punches sharply with each hand, and believes he has too much polish and hitting power for King.

On paper, it looks like a good scrap with the rival boxers prepared to step at a lively clip every second they are in the ring.

Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, will referee one of the four round preliminaries. Eddie Mack acted as Johnson's trainer at the time Jack was managed by the late Alex MacLean.

There will be a six round preliminary between Bill Weinberg of Chelsea, a graduate of the Hearst All-America bouts, and Al Bouchard of Kingston. Weinberg and Herbert Coonan recently engaged in a stirring tussle at the Arena.

Another six-round bout will bring together Al Sinabaldi of Portland and Joe Piaster of Worcester.

In four rounders, Jimmy Jones of Brockton will take on Al Dutra of Cambridge, Tony Gouvin of Brockton will oppose Irish Mickey Canty of Springfield, while John Henry Eskew of Brockton will exchange broadsides with Wildcat Grande of Springfield.

Armstrong Guns For Fast Finish

Boston will get a peek at Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, welterweight champion of the world, at his blazing best, turning it on full blast, when he squares off with Ralph Zanelli, Providence, in the 15-round feature championship bout of a Goodwin A. C. ring carnival at the Garden on Friday night, May 24.

A serious threat to Armstrong's chances because he'll have a 10-pound advantage in weight, Zanelli is regarded as a most dangerous foe for the welter king. Armstrong regards him as a menace and has announced his intention of disposing of Zanelli, the Providence strong boy, as fast as possible.

In fact, Armstrong will be gunning for a knockout in the very first round when the bell rings to send him swinging and slugging into action at the North Station depot a week from tomorrow p. m. This will make it safe for his scheduled clash with Lew Jenkins at N. Y., July 17, a $300,000 affair from all appearances.

SARAZEN'S RECORD UNLIKELY TO FALL IN GOODALL GOLF

FIRST ROUND PAIRINGS

Jimmy Demaret, Jimmy Thomson and Craig Wood.
Ben Hogan, Jimmy Hines and Byron Nelson.
Martin Pose, Gene Sarazen and Henry Picard.
Paul Runyan, Lawson Little and Sam Snead.
Horton Smith, Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner.

By BILL GRIMES

FLUSHING, N. Y., May 16—Although fifteen of the top ranking golf professionals will gang up on him this afternoon in the first round of the third annual $5000 Goodall Round Robin Tournament, Old Man Par is favored to stand off the invaders, for the course is one of the best tests in the country, and moreover today it is playing very long, for it is heavy and the marks are all on the stern of every tee.

Eight years ago Gene Sarazen lowered the Fresh Meadow course record to 66, during the United States open championship, played the last 28 holes in an even 100 strokes and went home with the title.

"I'll grant that the cream of the professional golfers are to compete here this afternoon in the Goodall," declared Sarazen this morning while tuning up his game for this afternoon's opening round, "and I'll admit present company accepted, of course, that the field which forced me to shoot the last 28 holes 12 under 44 didn't have as many outstanding stars, but I'll wager that there'll be no 66s posted.

"Fresh Meadow has always been tough, and I should know for I was the pro here at one time. It's tougher today than I've ever seen it. Due to the late spring, the grass on the fairways is heavy and it's impossible to get much roll and as usual they've got the markers so far back that we're liable to fall off the tees."

ODDS-ON FAVORITE

Due to the class of the field and the type of tournament there isn't any odds-on favorite, True, Byron Nelson, the U. S. Open titlist, Henry Picard, the P. G. A. champion, and Jimmy Demaret have a strong following backing them to annex the $1000 first prize and the Goodall trophy. But they are not laying any long odds on their favorites.

The first round will be played this afternoon, and there will be two rounds daily starting tomorrow through Saturday. Each contestant will play 14 matches during the seven rounds.

Jimmy Demaret who was the big money winner of the winter circuit is in the first threesome with Jimmy Thomson, the long hitter, and Craig Wood who tied Byron Nelson and Denny Shute in the U. S. Open last year at Philadelphia and went on to tie the Texan at the end of the first play off round only to lose during the second 18 extra holes.

SOONER THE BETTER

Upon learning that he had drawn Demaret and Wood for the first round, Jimmy Thompson's only comment was:

"I'd rather play them at the start than the finish. And I might be hotter today than I would be if I tackled them in the seventh."

Little Ben Hogan wil go out with Jimmy Hines and Byron Nelson and if he's hitting the ball as well as he was in the South just before the wind up of the winter cruise, Hines and Nelson will need be at the peak of their games to stay with the 145-pound Texan.

The third threesome off will be Martin Pose, the Argentina open champion; Gene Sarazen and Henry Picard. Pose turned in the low round yesterday even par, with one bad hole, and t American pros admit that he's a truly fine golfer.

GREAT ON SECOND SHOTS

Paul Runyan drew a couple of sluggers, Lawson Little and Sam Snead but he's uncanny with his second shots and around the greens and neither Little nor even Snead is going to have much of a lead over him, when the results are posted.

Horton Smith, Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner comprise the fifth and final threesome.

At the conclusion of the first round, the field will be revamped and the players will be called upon to play two rounds tomorrow.

morrow not as just another ball game, but as a day of retribution. Such types may not make happy companions or patterns for brighter living, but they belong to that restless breed who are eaten by creative unease and who find in accomplishment a sedative for suffering. The Sox have a sprinkling of that kind of player now in Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Jim Tabor, Lou Finney, Jim Bagby and Mickey Harris.

GROVE IS A PHYSICAL ODDITY. At 40, past the summit of athletic life for most men, he is still a winning pitcher. Of course, he has never burned out his filament in midnight prowlings, swallowing boisterous waters or any of that skin-the-cat nonsense familiar to many ball players. He keeps strict farm-hand's hours, going to bed with the pea-fowls and rising with the dew. And during the off season, instead of growing ripples of suet about his middle in arm-chair sitting, he mooches around his Maryland crags with a rifle in the hollow of his arm and his beagles frisking out yonder. He eats hominy grits, corn pone and the rustic fare of his simple beginnings. So that now, at 40, an age when most athletes have toothaches in their shins and live on little stomach pills, Lefty still retains his capital investment in health and lives on the interest.

The passing years have mellowed old pickle puss and now when umpires misread his strikes, Lefty's inner lava no longer boils up in licks of flame. He used to stand on the infield grass and murder the men with his eyes while the back of his neck turned sunset shades. But now he is even cordial with the newspaper pests and has learned to conserve his spiritual fuel for the moments when he needs it most—the "clutch." For the test of any great athlete, man or beast, is the way he rises to the pinch, so that Lefty's magic fizzes up best when the going is worst, just as a good race horse begins to churn its big rump faster as it feels a pursuing nag's breath grow hotter on its flank. May his shadow never grow less!

Y Honors 120 Athletes

Concluding its most successful sports season in recent years, the Huntington ave. branch of the Boston Y. M. C. A. last night presented awards to 120 athletes at the annual honor night.

For the first time awards were made to men who have participated on "Y" sports teams for five years, as follows:

Casey Refuses to Part With $10,000 Belt

Steve Casey, world's heavyweight wrestling champion until he met The Angel the other night, refused to part with his $10,000 diamond studded chmapionship belt, which traditionally has passed from one wrestling champion to the other.

"I have the belt and I'm going to keep it," he said. Whoever heard of a referee disqualifying a wrestler for roughness when he wasn't doing anything that would break the rules?"

Casey Nine Plays Host To Sailors

Artesani Club of Brighton will bid to upset the undefeated St. Alphonsus A. A. Club of Roxbury tonight at Fens Stadium in the lead-off tilt of four Boston Park League twi games scheduled.

Barney Pallis, who held the potent Roslindale Town Club to a deadlock in Monday's opener will probably shuffle on the Artesani rubber, with Bob Maher the hosts' serving selection.

With an eye on the regaining of first place in the West Division of the circuit, Joe McCarthy will choose Larry Kelly as his chucking choice when Roslindale checks in at Barry Playground, Charlestown, to play St. Catherine's. The Saints were moved down a notch last night when the Casey Club torpedoed the Navy at Barry Playground, 11-1.

Navy Yard A. A. will counter-attack at Dorchester Town Field against the Dick Casey Club where a record crowd is anticipated, and Casey may use last year's Murphy Club ace, Jackie Jackowitz, or even the great Charlie Bird to stem the Blue.

In the fourth game of the card, Boston Hellenics again play at Cleveland Circle in Brighton where they bowed to Roslindale on Tuesday night, and St. Augustines will provide the opposition.

The usually strong Benson-piloted Saints have yet to win a game in the current campaign but tonight Lefty Smith may turn the trick on the Greeks.

Crosby Club 7, Carter Clothes 2.
